"MEOW!" BURGLAR LETS GO OF LOOT AND FLEES

Mrs. Evelyn Wixstead of Malden is very proud of these pretty animals, who aroused her from sleep and gave her the chance to fight off a burglar. Whether they have nine lives or not, they must have the sixth sense. They sensed the prowler did not belong in the house and jumped up on their mistress' bed, clawing and meowing. She quickly awoke and put the burglar to flight.

INGERSOLL SHOOTING OVER LOST LOVE

JEALOUSY LEADS WIFE OF 'WATCH KING' TO KILL SELF, WOUND SUITOR

New York, Dec. 20.—Wallace McLean Probasco, shot three times in a love tangle by Mrs. Robert H. Ingersoll, estranged wife of Robert H. Ingersoll, the Dollar "Watch King," was in a critical condition today at Bellevue Hospital and may die. After shooting him, Mrs. Ingersoll shot and killed herself.

The tragedy occurred in Mrs. Ingersoll's luxurious apartment on Park avenue. Jealousy today was ascribed as the cause of the tragedy by Probasco, who was estranged from his own wife. Lying on his hospital cot the latter told police:

"I told Mrs. Ingersoll Saturday that my wife and I were reconciled. Later in the day she telephoned me to come over at once. I decided the best thing for me to do was to go. So I went over shortly after noon.

"I went to Mrs. Ingersoll's apartment determined to break with her for good; I was rather sorry for her, but I felt very happy, for I was going back to my wife, whom I love.

OLD INDIAN FIGHTER AT CRABTREE TRIAL

The phantom figures of famous Indian fighters, mining porspectors and two-gun badmen of the early West were paraded in the drab Probate Court today as J. Calvin Jones, ex-Indian fighter, recalled the ghostly company that has passed on.

Jones, now 76 years old, told in detail of the government's fights against the Indians in the seventies and early eighties. He told of the stampede to Tombstone, Ariz., when silver was discovered there by the famous Ed Shevlin.

In intimate detail, the old Indian fighter told how he led a band that purchased horses and mules that General Nelson A. Miles might start a mighty offensive against Geronimo, the war-like Indian chieftain and outlaw.

KING FERDINAND WANTS TO ABDICATE FOR CAROL

Paris, Dec. 20. (A.P.).—King Ferdinand of Rumania wishes to abdicate the throne and restore former Crown Prince Carol to the rights he renounced on January 4 last.

The King made this wish known to his ministers at a secret council held in Bucharest last week, it is learned from a high Rumanian political source in Paris.

As a result [illegible] king's "ultimatum" to his [illegible], General Coanda was sent to Paris and already has advised Ferdinand that Carol is willing to comply with his father's wishes, but under several conditions.

These are, first, that King Ferdinand must acquiesce to Carol's divorcing Princess Helen—that, if pos

AMBULANCE IN CRASH; PATIENT IS IN PERIL

A score of accidents in which automobiles, trucks and wagons figured were reported today to the police in Greater Boston, although no fatalities were reported. Many of the accidents were due to slippery pavement.

An ambulance of the Boston City Hospital, carrying a patient, Mortimer Coakley of No. [illegible]1 Eustis street, Roxbury, crashed into a water plug after being struck by a Checker taxicab at Eustis and Hammond streets. Coakley, suffering from influenza, was being taken to the hospital in charge of John Peterson, an orderly.

The taxicab driver became confused and his car skidded into the water plug, breaking the plug. The water spouted twelve feet into the air and flooded the street. Both the patient and orderly were shaken up, but the ambulance was not disabled and continued on its way to the hospital.

Bernard Kelly of Harold street, Roxbury narrowly escaped death when his automobile skidded, at Washington and Marcella streets, the machine running over the pavement and through a plate glass window into the shoe repair shop of C. M. Emisico.

Kelly had turned sharply to avoid striking two coasters and the glassy street did the rest. Kelley was treated at the New England Hospital for lacerations of the face and shoulders.

Rewarded for Aid
Goodfellow Shows How Work Reaps Benefits

Are you a Christmas Goodfellow? If not, you should become one without delay. Read the following and learn how one Christmas Goodfellow was rewarded last season for the marvelous work she did in relieving destitution. This Christmas Goodfellow is Mrs. M. Anna Hannan of No. 52 Irving street. Listen to her story:

"Last year I had a cyst on one of my eyes. The doctors told [illegible] and that I would become blind on account of it. They told him they did not dare operate, as the cyst was on a nerve, and that if they operated upon me, my entire body would be affected."

"As I firmly believe in the power of prayer, I prayed to Saint Theresa to relieve me of my trouble and I also decided to give every minute of my time to the relief of the needy. My prayers were answered. My eyesight is perfect today, the cyst having disappeared without treatment or operation. I do not even have to wear glasses.

"This year, I am devoting all of my spare time to the relief of impoverished families through the medium of the Boston Evening American Christmas Goodfellow Movement. I am also praying to Saint

COLD WAVE KILLS FIVE; TWO MORE ARE DYING

Leaving a toll of five dead and two dying in its wake, the cold wave, which has had New England in its icy grip for three days, is today out over the North Atlantic.

With the slowly rising temperature a snowstorm arrived today.

Of the five deaths reported four were caused by the severe cold when four men and one woman were victims of gas heaters which they had burning in their rooms for warmth. The fifth death was that of Rev. J. Albert Robillard of Chicopee, who died from the effects of exposure after being called to the scene of an auto accident to administer the last rites of the church.

Found in their beds early today Peter Librato, 60, at No. 15 Fleet street, and Daniel Gifford, 47, No. 60 Chambers street, were both dead

MAYOR PICKS OWN 'DOLE BOARD' HEAD; STIRS ROW

Mayor Nichols today told the Overseers of the Public Welfare what member he wants named as the acting chairman of the board and, as a result, fresh trouble is brewing in the bureau that handles distribution of doles to the poor.

The Mayor designated his recent appointtee, Nathan A. Heller, the man who replaced Chairman Simon E. Hecht on the board. Hecht was discharged by Mayor Nichols because of the cut in family allowances to Boston's poor.

A storm is due to break at the special meeting of the overseers, scheduled for tomorrow in their Chardon street administration building, to elect a new chairman.

ROW IS BREWING.

Already angry at the removal of Hecht and the throwing of the blame for the dole cut on to the overseers, several of the members of the Board of Public Welfare were only more incensed by the Mayor's designation of his choice for chairman.

He called the members into conference at his office and ten responded. Afterwards he said it was a harmonious gathering.

Instead of departing immediately to their business places or homes, however, the members remained in the vicinity of the mayoral office and discussed the new turn of events for a long time following the conference. None would predict resignations, but these would not cause much surprise at City Hall, should they occur.

"The Mayor cracked the whip over their heads again; now let's see what will happen," one interested city official said when he learned of the gathering.

Nathan A. Heller is at present a member of the Transit Commission.

BREAD TRUST INQUIRY VOTED BY U. S. SENATE

Washington, Dec. 20 (A.P.).—An investigation of charges that a bread trust has been created was ordered today by the Senate Judiciary Committee in compliance with a resolution of Senator La Follette, Republican, Wisconsin.

A sub-committee, consisting of Senator Walsh, Democrat, Montana, as chairman, and Senators Deneen, Illinois, and Borah, Idaho, Republicans, was appointed to conduct the inquiry, which has been authorized by the Senate.

The resolution directed an inquiry into the action of the Federal Court of Baltimore in promulgating a consent decree which ended proceedings initiated by the Federal Trade Commission against a merger of several large baking companies.

The Baltimore decree led to a demand by Senator Norris, Republican, Nebraska, for an inquiry into the judicial procedure which preceded the court's ruling.

VICTIMS OF N. Y. RIVER DISASTER SINGING JAZZ AS ICE WRECKS LAUNCH

New York, Dec. 20.—Gaily singing jazzy songs, at the prospect of employment, 62 of the city's "unemployed" were plunged without warning into the icy waters of the Hudson River today. At least 33 and probably five others were drowned.

Huge ice floes crushed their launch, the Linseed King, like kindling wood and they went hurtling into the river as their strident voices changed from song to shrieks of horror.

Boats darting to the rescue picked up 24 men, many of them suffering agony from immersion in the icy water. Five bodies could not be found, but the half-frozen corpses of 33 victims were fished, one after another, from the river as hour after hour of frenzied searching went on.

The loud shouting chant of the 62 men as they crossed the river in the launch caused a fatal delay in rescue work, for persons on the piers along the bank, who had heard the singing, did not recognize the

FULLER ARRIVES FROM EUROPE ON LEVIATHAN

New York, Dec. 20.—Governor Alvan T. Fuller of Massachusetts was an incoming passenger on the United States liner Leviathan today, which arrived here with 1,249 passengers from Southampton and Cherbourg.

It was reported that Governor Fuller was trailed all through Europe by private detectives seeking to get something on him that could be used in connection with the Sacco-Vanzetti murder case. Asked about this, the Massachusetts executive said:

"If I have been followed by private detectives I knew nothing of it. I don't care to discuss the Sacco-Vanzetti case. I was merely in Europe on a pleasure trip."

The Governor was said to have brought back several paintings purchased by him in Europe.

STARVING MAN BECAME CANNIBAL TO SAVE LIFE

Avalon, Santa Catalina Island, Cal., Dec. 20 (A.P.).—The startling admission that he had eaten the flesh of his dead companion, whom he survived when the two were cast adrift at sea in an open boat, was made here by Eli B. Kelly 69, Redondo fisherman.

Kelly was picked up on the beach and taken to a hospital after drifting for eleven days.

The mutilated body of his companion James McKinley, 63, was found in the bottom of a small fishing yawl off the end of the island.

Kelly said he had been without food or water for eight days. His shipmate, crazed by hunger and thirst when supplies ran out, died from exhaustion after having jumped overboard three times. Kelly said he rescued his companion three times.

According to Kelly's story, the two men set out on a fishing cruise from Redondo December 8 in a twenty-foot yawl. On the second night out they ran into a storm

REVEALS HUGE GRAFT IN ALIEN PROPERTY FUNDS

Washington, Dec. 26 (A.P.).—Declaring that Comptroller-General McCarl's report of the administration of alien property had disclosed the "worst system of looting this country has ever known," Senator Borah of Idaho predicted today an investigation would be ordered by the Senate after the Christmas holidays.

New York, Dec. 20 (A.P.).—Comptroller McCarl, in a special report to President Coolidge on the administration of the half-billion dollars' worth of alien property seized during the war, reveals many irregularities, says a Washington dispatch to the World.

The President, says the World, has sent copies of the report to the Treasury and to Senator Borah, chairman of a committee to investigate the alien property situation.

BALKED AT GIVING UP SUITOR

"Mrs. Ingersoll upbraided me when I came in for my coolness toward her. I apologized and told her immediately, wanting to have it over with, that I was not going to see her any more.

"She was very angry. Going into the other room she returned with my hat in her hand and held it toward me. 'Go now,' she said, and I reached for my hat without answering her.

"As I took the hat she fired with the pistol she held beneath it. I was struck and knew it, but I was not hurt much and did not fall. I said, 'My God,' and she fired again and again. The bullets knocked me down.

"She ran to the other room and I heard her fire a shot, but I could not go to her immediately. I felt sick. When I was able to get up I went to the bedroom where she had gone, and there I saw she had killed herself. It made me sick again and it was some time before I could telephone."

Mrs. Ingersoll was fifty-three and Probasco is between sixty and sixty-five.

BEDECKED IN JEWELS.

Probasco was held today in the prison ward of Bellevue Hospital on a technical charge of homicide.

When Mrs. Ingersoll's body was found in the apartment she was dead in a pink dressing gown and wore jewels valued at $35,000.

Mr. Ingersoll, sixty-seven, husband of the suicide, identified the body.

Mrs. Probasco today remained at her husband's side in the hospital.

"I love him dearly. I always have loved him and always shall," she said. "I had kept this affair with the other woman a secret, and now I am frantic when I thinn of him here in the hospital.

"It is all over—let the dead past bury its dead. If my husband lives he will be mine alone, forever."

To add to the grimness and amazing character of the tragedy, the double shooting, presumably prompted by a love affair, took place in the midst of preparations for observing the coming Yuletide.

Police, bursting into the apartment on what has become the most pretentious residential thoroughfare of the city, found the dead woman and her dying companion lying on the floor, with Christmas cards, many of which had been addressed, scattered all around them.

On her heart lay near, a scrawled note beginning, "It was a mistake."

The woman, with a single bullet through her heart, lay near him, with a hastily scrawled farewell note beginning "It was a mistake," nearby.

Leaving the writing desk, Mrs. Ingersoll had gone to a bathroom, where she swallowed the contents of a bottle of iodine and then taking a small .32 calibre revolver from a dresser drawer went to an outer room and fired three shots into Probasco's body. She then placed the weapon against her own breast and fired one shot into her heart.

STRUGGLE INDICATED.

And near the door, as the police entered, was Mrs. Roberta Ingersoll Probasco, estranged wife of the mortally wounded man whom he had summoned by telephone after the shooting, in the realization that his own death was impending in consequence of the fateful romance in which he had long played one of the principal parts.

Persons living on the same floor as the Ingersoll apartment said that the first notice of trouble came when they heard voices raised in dispute. There was a dead pause and then three shots rang out, followed by another pause, then another shot.

Probasco's right arm was broken by one shot. Two bullets had lodged in his chest. One bullet through the heart had killed the woman.

Scattered in wild profusion about the room were Christmas parcels and greeting cards, indicating that a struggle had taken place. The overturned tea table had added to the confusion, tea things being strewn from one end of the room to the other.

Several hours after the tragedy, Robert H. Ingersoll, who had gone to the apartment to identify his wife's body, sobbed:

"Oh, this lamentable business!"

Sinking into a chair, the aged millionaire, still grasping in his hands the two canes by which he painfully walks, added:

"The affair had been going on for a number of years—maybe ten years, and I knew all about it. It's very sad indeed. I can't say more now."

KEPT LONE VIGIL.

With the firing of the four shots which snuffed out one life and sent the other one to the verge of eternity, there was brought to a close a romance which few had been aware of, and which had few parallels in the history of the country.

Mrs. Maude Roberta Ingersoll Probasco—daughter of the agnostic orator of another day—frankly cried out her grief and explanation of the tragedy.

"I loved my husband more deeply than my life," Mrs. Probasco said, her contorted features giving vivid proof of her agitation. "And it was doubtless because of his decision to come back to me that this thing happened.

"We had a talk at my apartment, and he told me of his intention. He said:

" 'I'm going to tell Mrs. Ingersoll that I'm coming back to you. I'm going to have it out with her. You and I have been separated long enough!'

"It is obvious that he did that—and now see what happened. Mrs. Ingersoll had fired a shot at my husband once before when he attempted to break off with her. But this time—her shots struck home in his body."

Describing the moment before she knew of the tragedy, she said she was sitting in her boudoir, waiting for word from him, when her 'phone rang. Her husband's voice moaned over it:

"Come to No. 55 Park avenue at

with a woman who was known as Crabtree's wife.

He said that at one time Jack Crabtree told him Lotta Crabtree was his sister and that she planned t obuild a palatial home in Tombstone if the community continued to grow.

He said that in 1881 he was in Tombstone on government business again, and stopped at the San Jose Hotel, Jack Crabtree occupying an adjoining room. A year later, in Tombstone, he talked to Ed Bullock, who told him Crabtree had gone away.

Cross examined by Frederick M. Chase of counsel for the Crabtree estate, the Witness Jones testified:

"There was a lot of talk in the newspapers out there about lawyers trying to find someone in connection with the heirs to the Crabtree estate. I talked about the case with John Wright, United States attorney. One day Mr. Wright called for me and took me out riding and we discussed the case. I spoke to hundreds of people about the case. I told them I saw Jack Crabtree at Tombstone, Arizona. I knew the woman in the buggy with him was his wife, because I asked him who she was and he told me."

Jack Crabtree felt part of the proceeds of his sister Lotta's success on the stage was due him, according to Louis H. Newkirk, New York attorney, another witness.

AMBULANCE IN TAXI CRASH

Albert L. Brouillard slipped from its mooring on Joy street and skidded to the foot of the hill, carrying away a "No Coasting" sign and striking a stone pillar en route. The car finally lodged against the iron fence surrounding Beacon Chambers, a bachelor apartment.

A taxicab driver, John Heffernan of Leland street, Roxbury, had a narrow escape when his cab skidded through the gates of the Chelsea north drawbridge when the draw was open. The cab was wrecked and lodged just on the edge of the open draw. Heffernan claimed there were no lights on the gates.

William N. Denning of Island rd., Salem Willows, and Gertrude Brooks of Cabot street, Beverly, were in an automobile which crashed head on into another car on Highland avenue, Salem.

The Denning machine carromed off the other car, leaped a stone wall and dropped over a twenty-foot embankment. Mr. and Mrs. John F. Lord and their children of Morrill Place, Lynn, were passengers in the car. All escaped serious injury.

TECH STUDENT DENIES TAKING PART IN RIOT

Testifying in his own defense, Sidney Hardwick, one of four Tech students on trial in connection with the riots of November, denied all charges preferred against him today in Roxbury District Court.

He was not present when the Tent ballroom on Huntington avenue was damaged, he declared, and was not implicated in the injury to an auto owned by James E. Nixon, Jr., of Roxbury.

Hardwick said he marched in the rear of a column of students into Boston and then went to Rogers Hall, to cheer. Then he went to Symphony Hall, later departing in a truck. He returned when he heard a fight was in progress but did not join, he said. The other students on trial are, Charles E. Lyons, Arnold A. Smith and Prescott D. Grout.

sudden change to terrified shrieks for help.

With those missing the death toll was expected to reach to at least thirty-seven, one of the worst tragedies in the long history of New York's harbor and river waters.

Ambulances, hastily called as the rescue work began, lined New York piers to take the survivors to hospitals.

ANSWER "HELP WANTED"

The men were crossing the river to the Jersey side to answer an advertisement for help wanted by the New Jersey linseed oil manufacturing plant of Spencer Kellogg & Sons. The Linseed King put out from the pier at the foot of 96th street.

Great cakes of ice, sweeping down toward the harbor in the current of the Hudson, threatened it before it was many rods astream. With a crunching and crashing the ice piled against the launch and after tearing huge holes below the water-line, through which the river waters poured, completed the destruction by crushing the boat to pieces.

PERISH IN ICY WATER.

Many of those aboard went under in the midst of the tangled wreckage and had no chance of escape. Others were hurled clear of the wreck only to perish in the cold river after vainly struggling against cold and current.

From distant points on the river, a few witnesses of the tragedy saw the boat first tilt on one side, while all aboard clung to the other side in a momentary attempt to keep it from capsizing. The continued onsweep of the ice cakes dashed their hopes in another moment.

Screams for help from the men struggling in the water were drowned out by the shrill whistles of river craft that sped to the scene from points up and down the river.

Police boats were despatched to the scene and grappling irons dropped to aid in recovering bodies.

On shore many ambulances were called.

IGNORED DEATH CRIES

One man who might have gone early to the aid of the drowning said he did not do so because he thought their screaming was merely a continuance of singing they had been doing on the pier. This man, named Marshall, was in charge of a lighter tied up at the pier from which the Linseed King started.

"The pier was jammed," he said, "with young men dancing and singing trying to keep warm. As the launch started out they were still shouting and singing.

"There was a lot of ice in the river and most of it in large cakes. The launch headed for Jersey and I went into my cabin. Soon after that I heard a crunching sound and thought the launch's propeller must have churned up an ice floe. I heard yelling, too, but I thought it was the men still singing and I didn't go outside."

WRECKED BOAT TOWED IN.

The wreckage of the Linseed King reappeared on the surface amid the ice floes and tossed about in the current, endangering other shipping until it was taken in tow and brought ashore.

In the centre of the wreckage was the cabin, still partly intact and from this several bodies were recovered. Some of the victims were clutching life-preservers even in death showing that death came before they had time to link them about their bodies.

Some of the rescued saved their lives by clinging desperately to small ice-cakes until picked up by small boats that came to the scene.

from the effects of gas heaters in their rooms. The same cause of death was reported in the finding of William Gellard of Pawtucket, R. I., dead in his bed.

At No. 8 Corning street, South End, Mrs. Fannie Donahue was found dead in her bed. A gas heater also caused her death. In the same district at No. 38 Dwight street Joseph Carver was found dying from the deadly gas heater's effects. He is in serious condition at the City Hospital. At No. 1034 Washington street Arthur H. Earle was another victim. Physicians say he will recover.

CONVICTION OF WOMAN HINGES ON "SIGNATURE"

A liquor selling verdict against Mrs. Annie Saltsman hinges on whether the woman's mark, or the accompanying signature on a document, constitutes the legal signature.

Mrs. Saltsman was convicted on a complaint naming Mrs. Annie Saltsman. Before the Supreme Court today, the woman's attorney offered a certified copy of a married woman's certificate issued to Mrs. Saltsman and containing her mark, opposite which is the name "Martha Saltsman." Asst. Dist. Atty. Harold W. Sullivan contended the woman's mark, and not the accompanying name, was the real signature.

FURNITURE COMPANY'S LOSS TOTALS $150,000

The Taylor Furniture Company of No. 770 Washington street, announced today that the loss sustained in the fire in its store yesterday amounted to $150,000.

Fire, smoke and water damaged expensive suites of furniture on the third, fourth and fifth floors, and various pieces of multi-styled furniture on the first and second floors were virtually destroyed, according to M. H. Leadler, general manager.

The loss placed by the company was in excess of that estimated by fire officials.

BAUER DEMANDS POLICE PETTER QUIT FORCE

As an aftermath of the recent Edgar Reid polygamy case in Lynn, Mayor Ralph S. Bauer of that city today demanded the resignation from the police department of Reserve Officer John Hoyt on charges of "unfairness to his wife and three children."

Chief of Police Thomas M. Burkes declared he had evidence to prove Hoyt had made love to a Lynn unmarried woman, showering her with kisses and hugs.

Last week Edgar Reid, Lynn garage worker, was convicted of polygamy and sentenced to one year in jail, which he declared he preferred to returning to his first wife, Mrs. Euda Reid and her two children.

The second wife, who was Miss Dorothy Ross, 18 years old, daughter of Dr. Charles Ross, Salem dentist, stated she was introduced to Reid by Officer Hoyt. The girl said Hoyt knew Reid was married, but kept her in ignorance of the fact.

It was laso brought out that Hoyt and a girl chum of Miss Ross accompanied her and Reid on automobile rides and roadhouse parties. According to Miss Ross the policeman proposed marriage to the other girl several times.

He further announced that he would investigate the private lives of other Lynn officers.

WILLS HIS 'FAIR WIFE' $180,000

Champaign, Ills., Dec. 20 (A.P.).—The will of Senator William B. McKinley, who died recently at Martinsville, Ind., listing bequests of $513,-00 besides others of which the value was not stated was filed for probate today.

Mrs. Kate F. McKinley, the estranged widow, is the first person named in the document. Describing her as "just and fair," the will bequeathes her $100,000 in 5 per cent. bonds.

"Knowing as I do that she can legally claim much more," said Senator McKinley in the will, "but also knowing she is just an fair, I am satisfied she will acquiese in this disposition of my estate.

TO BE DAMP IN HUB AS JAN. 1 COMES ALONG

Frolicking Bostonians on New New Year's Eve will spend more than a quarter-million of dollars to welcome 1927 in, according to hotel, club and cabaret managements, who report nearing the limit of advance reservations earlier than ever before.

And, Federal sleuths notwithstanding, indications are that the holiday enthusiasm at the scores of hostelries will be—not dampened—but very damp.

Hotel managers will offer no comment on the liquor question, on the hectic "B. Y. O. L." parties of pre-Volstead years, or on the probable contribution of Boston's wet folk to bootleg parties.

Pomp, splendor and pageantry, with all sorts of varied entertainment, are their contribution to the gaiety. Plans this year outdo anything previously attempted in the Hub.

Cover and dinner charges range from $5 upward with some of the most popular places getting $10 for dinner, dancing and lavish entertainment. Crowds that the popular hotels will accommodate range from 300 to 1,800.

As usual, the Copley Plaza plans for the greatest number at the usual $10 charge, and reservations are nearly filled for the 1,800.

Popular centres will be Young's, observing its final New Year's Eve celebration, and the Kenmore, celebrating with grand eclat for the first time. The former will serve food and provide entertainment for 300, the Kenmore will take care of 600.

The Touraine will entertain 600, the Brunswick and Lenox about 1,600 between them, the Westminster 1,000. And this sketch of the celebrating crowd just scratches the surface of the Boston revelry.

A pageant, rivaling in brilliance that of royal courts, will be a feature at the Copley Plaza, where a brass band and three orchestras will help entertain.

HEFLIN SAYS SMITH WAS SLAIN; TELLS WHY

SOUGHT G. O. P. FUNDS FROM BOOTLEGGERS

Washington, Dec. 20 — Renewing his charges that Jess Smith, one-time confidential agent of former Attorney-General Harry M. Daugherty, had been murdered, Senator Heflin (D.) of Alabama today cited what he believed were the motives of the alleged crime.

Heflin revived the old charges Smith was commissioned to raise funds for a $2,000,000 deficit on the Republican national committee by solicitations from bootleggers and brewers with the aid of Federal district attorneys.

This deficit was a part of a $5,000,000 loan to the committee by Secretary of the Treasury Mellon, Heflin said, reading testimony given the Senate judiciary committee last April at hearings on the qualifications of Federal District Attorney Boyles of Alabama.

Heflin added that he didn't know whether the $5,000,000 said to have been loaned the Republican Committee by Secretary Mellon was "Mellon's money or the government's."

"I know that $3,000,000 was brought in to Mellon, and Jess Smith was assigned to get the other $2,000,000."

"Jesse Smith was the crooked agent of Harry M. Daugherty," Heflin added. "He collected this money from bootleggers. It was stated just after his death that his share of this loot was $200,000. And it was said he got nervous over his acts and had made up his mind to make a clean

CAL'S SON MAY LOSE GUARD

Washington, Dec. 20 (I.N.S.).—An action will be instituted in Federal court at Washington to deprive John Coolidge, son of the President, of his secret service bodyguard at Amherst College on the grounds it is unlawful for the government to force taxpayers to stand the expense of personal protection for young Coolidge, Raymond J. Cannon, Milwaukee attorney, announced here today. At his own request, Ed Starling has been relieved as personal bodyguard for John Coolidge and Russell Wood, a young secret service operative, has been assigned, the White House announced today.

GETS 10 YEARS FOR FATAL KNICKERS ROW

New York, Dec. 20 (I.N.S.).—Lloyd Jordan, 21, of Kingsport, Tenn., who shot and killed Joseph Rousch, same age, last July, following a controversy as to whether or not young girls should wear knickers today was sentenced to from ten to twenty years in Sing Sing on a charge of manslaughter by Judge Cohn in Bronx County Court.

$500,000 Fire at Flint, Mich.

Flint, Mich., Dec. 20 (I.N.S.).—Nine firemen were slightly injured in a $500,000 fire which for a time threatened the entire business section here today. The fire destroyed the Monterey Cafe and the Barnes store.

TELLS WHY HE KILLED BOY

Chicago, Dec. 20 (A.P.).—Harold Croarkin today confessed he battered six-year-old Walter Schmith with a hammer in a North Side barn loft in a panic of fright, fearing his victime would tell of his actions. The boy died at a hospital.

The admissions of motive came at the end of a long hour's questioning following the youth's voluntary surrender on Sunday. Previously he had asserted that he did not know why he killed the youth who was found dying, Friday night, in the loft where the attack occurred.

In Croarkin's latest statement, which followed a number of rambling declartions concerning the murder he said that he had asked Walter to go after some coffee. They had no bucket and another boy was asked to go home for one.

Croarkin then went into the barn with Walter and after describing his actions there he said that he became alarmed, having been told in a previous case in which he was named that his actions constituted a penal offence.

He then decided to kill the youth and asked him to go to the second floor. Seizing a hammer he followed. He then dared the youth to climb into the loft, where, he related, he struck the boy and left him to die.

Francis E. Croarkin, uncle of the accused and former school board member and attorney, declared today the family would make only a "Loeb-Leopold" defense.

Manchester, N. H., Dec. 20 (A.P.).—Alice Bradshaw, for many years housekeeper for the late Charles E. Rowell, is the principal beneficiary of the Rowell estate, valued at more than $200,000, probating of the will at a special session of probate court reveals.

The sum of $10,000 is left to John F. Delaney, her brother-in-law. Mr. Rowell had no heirs and Miss Bradshaw receives the entire estate outside of the $10,000 to Mr. Delaney.

BANDITS DOUSE LIGHTS WHILE ROBBING MAN

Brattleboro, Vt., Dec. 20 A.P.)—As he opened his safe in his store to lock up the day's receipts William Speno of the firm of Biagiotti & Speno was confronted by an armed and masked robber, who commanded him to hold up his hands. As he did so the store lights were extinguished and while the first robber, aided by a flashlight, covered Speno a second came from the front of the store and scooped $830 in bills from the safe and fled. The affair happened within fifteen rods of the police station.

SACCO CASE TO HIGH COURT

The final chapter in the Sacco-Vanzetti case drew one step closer, today, when counsel for the internationally known prisoners filed their exceptions to the refusal of Judge Webster Thayer to grant a new trial to the men convicted of the South Braintree murder.

The exceptions were filed with the office of Walter F. Frederick, clerk of the Supreme judicial court.

The 420 pages of printed matter comprising the exceptions, represent the findings of a group of the keenest legal minds in the country. With funds pouring in from radical labor circles throughout the world, no expense has been spared in the preparation of the document filed today. It represents the final barrier between Sacco and Vanzetti and the electric chair.

The refusal of Judge Thayer to reverse himself and grant a new trial to the accused men aroused protest in some quarters in this country and in Europe.

In the brief filed today, 54 pages are devoted to points of law involved in Judge Thayer's recent opinion. The remainder of the document is largely made up of affidavits offered in support of the motion for a new trial for the men who have stood for years in the shadow of the electric chair.

KING HOPES TO RESTORE CAROL TO THRONE

sible, she must leave the country before his return—and, second, that before he ascends the throne, the present government must be thrown out and a democratic cabinet, headed by Professor Jorga and comprising the leaders of the new Nations' Peasant party, must be given power.

At the present time there is a sharp quarrel at the royal palace over the succession of power.

Queen Marie, supported by Bratiano and Prince Stirbey, the latter's brother-in-law, wants a place on the regency which is now made up of Prince Nicolas, the president of the supreme court and the patriarch of the Rumanian church.

It is considered an absolute certainty that while the King lives he will never consent to this, as it would mean the final exile of Prince Carol.

The latter's relation with his royal mother, despite their two recent meetings in Paris, are believed to be worse than ever.

HUB SAVES ON CELEBRATIONS

A total of $38,365.60 savings as compared with 1925, was reported by the City of Boston today in the annual report for public celebrations, officials' salaries in that department, and for convention expenses.

The most expensive celebration for 1926 was the fourth of July, which cost the city $23,194.34. Firemen's Memorial Day, the second Sunday in June, cost the least, with $610. Columbus Day's expenditures were 55 cents more than the firemen's day.

Running second to the Glorious Fourth in cost is Memorial Day, with a total of $13,905.73. Evacuation Day, March 17, follows with $12,559.22.

Salaries for Secretary George H Johnson and his clerk, Miss B. D. Spaulding, amounted to $4,559.19, as compared with $5,000 for last year, and the rest of the department swelled the total to $4,898.13 against $11 312.43 for 1925.

Convention expenses dropped from $14,735.57 in 1925 to a mere $1,757.05 for last year.

SWOPE FORECASTS GOOD ELECTRICAL BUSINESS

New York, Dec. 20 (A.P.).—The electrical industry is looking forward to 1927 with confidence that this year's high rate of business will be continued, Gerard Swope, president of the General Electric Company, said today. Company's bookings for 1926 are estimated at about $325,000,000 a gain of $23,000,000 over 1925.

Wilson Orders Hub Police to Watch for Xmas Thieves

Police Commissioner Herbert A. Wilson today ordered all officers to keep a sharp lookout for thieves, in view of the many recent breaks, the majority of which were in the Back Bay.

He instructed patrolmen to notify all commercial house and store owners to keep an especially sharp watch during the Christmas rush, and, if possible, deposit money in banks daily.

He also instructed the officers to point out to business men the importance of leaving no money in their stores at night. This year, he said, there will be an extra long week-end, giving thieves an added advantage.

ALIEN PROPERTY GRAFT BARED

The report, the World says, reveals:

"Excessive amounts, aggregating millions, were paid for attorneys' fees, for commissions to depositors and other expenses.

"Corporations supposed to be liquidated are permitted to continue for years, for the benefit only of officers and attorneys.

"Salaried government employes were paid additional amounts from trust funds.

"Limitations placed by Congress on expenses of administration were disregarded in big matters and small.

"Funds were left for years in the possession of certain individuals without any serious attempt at collection.

"Interest on trust funds was withdrawn from the Treasury, which paid more than 4 per cent., and was placed in banks paying less than 3 per cent.

"Large expense accounts compensated for small salaries. Government employes rode in private cars at the expense of trust funds.

"Annual reports did not list the entire force on the payroll.

The great bulk of the property however, was fully accounted for according to the report.

The American Metal and the Chemical Foundation cases are detailed briefly, but the Bosch Magneto case is discussed in detail. Employes are the alien property custodian drew salaries from the Bosch Corporation, though they were on the payroll of the custodian's office.

The report also asserts that before the corporation was taken over by the government it had been valued by a chartered accountant at $8,500,000, but after the transfer its assets over liabilities were placed by another accountant at less than $6,000,000.

The report points out that while the United States is now suing the former alien custodian officials for the difference between the actual value of the company at the time of the sale and the sale price of $4,000,000, apparently no action has been taken by the United States to set aside the sale as having been made to other than an American citizen, in violation of the trading with the enemy act."

THIEVES FIND SAFE TOO HARD TO CRACK

Safe crackers surprised in the act of forcing an entrance through a wall into Marston's restaurant on Summer street after they had taken $400 from a candy store safe, are also blamed for another safe job, according to police today.

The E. D. Brooke clothing store, No. 22 Lincoln street, was the third victim, but the safe crackers left after knocking the knob off the combination. Entrance at the store was made through a rear door. The thieves took several suits and an overcoat, but the safe door evidently offered too much resistance.

In the Loft candy store job the gang was surprised just as a hole was being drilled through the wall of Marston's. Elizabeth L. Brown came to the store to open for business. Evidently the cracksmen did not expect her so early. They dropped their expensive tools and dived through windows to an auto they had parked and made their escape before police arrived.

breast of it. But he never lived to make a clean breast.

"That's one of the reasons why they wanted to get rid of Jesse Smith."

Heflin said he made this explanation in response to reports that District Attorney Buckner of New York had written him a letter asking what he knew about Smith's death.

It was a part of the plan, he continued, to have a man appointed United States marshal in Southern Alabama who would act for Smith and help collect "the loot." "I am going to keep on until this thing is laid before the American people," shouted Heflin. "There is no self-respecting man in the Senate who objects to what I said the other day about the Fall-Doheny verdict."

"I take exceptions to that statement," interrupted Senator Bruce, Democrat, Maryland. "I believe the judge in the case was an honorable, upright man."

"I don't know the judge," returned Heflin. "He might be a very intelligent man, but he was appointed by the Harding administration and should have never sat in this case."

Heflin flayed the "dice-playing, cursing, singing jury" that arrived at an acquittal verdict. He reviewed the activities of the "one ruffian" who announced he would keep the rest of the jurymen up all night if they didn't free the two defendants.

"God knows," he commented, "if the verdict was going to be what it was, it should have been reached at the darkest hour of night."

RUDNERS TRACE MOVEMENTS OF M'DERMOTT

Canton, O., Dec. 20 (A.P.)—Neighbors and members of Ben Rudner's family today came to the support of Patrick Eugene McDermott, on trial for the murder of Don R. Mellett, Canton publisher. Rudner was indicted with McDermott and Louis Mazer for the murder.

The defense witnesses today included Max Rudner, father of Ben; Herman Rubin, brother-in-law, and Mr. and Mrs. William Sheedy, neighbors of Ben Rudner, in Massillon.

Ben Rudner's activities and whereabouts July 8 and 9, the days Steve Kascholk, State's star witness, testified McDermott "got in touch with Rudner," and on July 26, alleged by the State to be the "pay-off" day, were covered by testimony of the witnesses.

Max and Herman Rudner testified that July 8, alleged to have been the first day McDermott and Rudner "got in touch," the father and his two sons went to Canal Dover, O., on a business trip late in the afternoon. July 9, they said, Ben was ill and went to bed early.

Mrs. Sheedy testified that they drove to Brewster with the Rudners the evening of July 26.

Mr. Rudner said Ben and Ed Rudner were driving an automobile on Sunday night, July 11, and that when Ed took him to the railroad station to go to Chicago, he said he and Ben had been to police headquarters because of a traffic accident. The State claims Rudner and his alleged fellow-conspirators were friendly with Canton police and had their protection.

Herman Schram, taxi driver, testified he took Rudner to a doctor to have his finger lanced on the morning of July 9, then brought him back to his home.

Washington, Dec. 20 (I.N.S.).—Striking back at the Democratic move for an investigation of "the barter and sale of public offices in the South, Republicans in the Senate today demanded that the scope of the inquiry be widened to include the alleged disenfranchisement of the negro in States below the Mason and Dixon line. As a result of this counter move, the whole proposition was referred to a special subcommittee of three, and decision on launching an investigation was temporarily deferred.

PUBLIC WARNED TO WATCH FOR TRENCH MOUTH

Warning of the dread "trench mouth" is issued today, following the death of Edith Herman, Bridgewater High School girl, victim of the post-war scourge.

Persons fearing symptoms of the disease are warned to see their dentists at once, for, according to doctors, the trouble can be cured only by nipping it in the bud. It is also infective and insidious in its progress.

Dr. H. C. Mohr, a Cambridge dentist, said today: "Trench mouth is a most insidious ailment, but it can be cured if corrected in time. I would not go so far as to say it is contagious, but it is infective. The first symptoms are sore gums.

"The gums then bleach out and the breath is vile. There is little danger of mistaking it for piorrhea as the only similarity is swollen gums. Neither is there any possibility of suffering from the scourge and not knowing it.

"If you have it," Dr. Mohr said, "you will know it. I can see no cause for general alarm. No one knows where the disease comes from, although we had plenty of it during the war. One group of dentists think it is an old disease with a new name."

The Bridgewater girl victim was mysteriously stricken with the disease. How she became infected is a mystery to the physicians who treated her. During the war it was prevalent among the soldiers of all nations along the front. Many causes have been ascribed to it, but its nature is still a mystery.

HAUGEN AGAIN HITCHES NAME TO M'NARY'S BILL

Washington, Dec. 20 (A.P.)—A companion for Senator McNary's farm relief bill was drafted today by Chairman Haugen of the House agriculture committee, making as possible to once more attach the title "McNary-Haugen" to the proposed legislation.

The McNary bill already has been introduced in the House by Representative Fulmer, Democrat, South Carolina, but he changed it so as to postpone for two years the application of an equalization fee on cotton. As it was written the measure would have authorized such a fee on basic crops, to be used to handle the surplus problem.

Mr. Haugen said the closest his bill came to bringing up the tariff issue was a clause that there shall be "equality between agricultural commodities and other products."

LANGLEY'S CONSPIRACY PALS ARE PUT ON PAROLE

Washington, Dec. 20 (A.P.)—Milton Lipschutz of Philadelphia, M. E. Huth of Alliance, O., convicted with former Rep. John W. Langley of Kentucky of conspiracy to violate the prohibition law, have been paroled by Attorney-General Sargent.

The three co-defendants were paroled by the Attorney-General coincident with the parole he gave Langley last Saturday.

Lipschutz was serving his sentence in the Atlanta Penitentiary with Langley, while Huth and Carey were sent to the convict road camp at Alderson, W. Va.

SAYS E. BOSTON OIL TANK WOULD MENACE LIFE

The 2,056,320 gallon petroleum tank which the Standard Oil Co. seeks permission to erect on its property at No. 469 Congress street, East Boston was characterized as a menace to life and property at a hearing before the Board of Street Commissioners today.

Strenuous opposition to the tank was offered by City Councillor Timothy F. Donovan of East Boston and Representatives William H. Barker, Bernard F. Hanrahan and William H. Hearn of that district, together with ex-Senator Thomas A. Niland and John J. Curran, a resident, and the K. J. Quinn Co., chemists.

O. W. Richardson, representing the Standard Oil Company, said there would be a reinforced concrete enclosure around the tank and in that connection said the company wanted to change the original location, placing the tank inside the enclosure, which they already have.

This would move the tank farther away from the Quinn Company plant and some distance from the original location.

Councillor Donovan spoke of the odor at present emanating from the plant which he declared was causing residents of the Fourth Section to leave the district. He said the tank would be a menace to public safety, and that the oil company should not be allowed to encroach on the tenement house district.

Former Senator Niland pointed out that the Bishop Cheverus School is in the near vicinity together with Star of the Sea Roman Catholic Church.

"There is too much oil in the district now," he said. "The quantity should be reduced and not increased. If the Standard Oil is allowed to increase its storage facilities any more it will shove us into the ocean right off the district."

John [illegible], for the Quinn Company, said: "The Standard Oil Company has brought to ruin the Quinn property, which adjoins it."

Lonely and misunderstood was the Boston girl who ripped the cover off of life. She traveled the path of many on a lower highway, but finally climbed back to the heights. Read of her career in "Golden Roads," a master serial beginning next Monday in the Boston Evening American.

BURNING OF SHIP DUE TO LEAKY GASOLINE ENGINE

Washington, Dec. 20 (I.N.S.).—The burning of the coast guard supply ship [illegible], off the Carolina coast Saturday, was caused by a leaky gasoline engine, according to a message to headquarters today. Only three men of a crew of eight were saved.

Two survivors, Seamen Schultz and Carter, said they saw four men drowned and one pull away in a water-logged lifeboat, which later was found empty. A third survivor, Olav Levesen, was reported picked up by the steamship Simmall.

FAMOUS GEM THEFT SOLVED IN FRANCE

Paris, Dec. 20.—The famous Rose diamond, known as the "Grand Condé," stolen from the gem tower in the chateau of the Duc D'Aumale in Chantilly early in October, has been recovered, chiefly because of the talkative nature of one of the burglars.

The famous gem was found by secret service men in a [illegible]. The stone was carefully wrapped in cotton. Two of the alleged thieves, Leon Kauffer and Emile Sentier, who crossed a flooded moat and climbed into the gem tower by means of a ladder and then escaped down a rope, were arrested and are reported to have confessed.

Two fences, who sold a fortune in smaller jewels which were stolen in October also were arrested. Other arrests are due.

Dispatches at the time of the gem's disappearance said the thieves were believed to number at least four. In addition to "the Grand Condé," they took a number of other objects, including a diamond-studded dagger which formerly belonged to the Arab Chief Abd El-Kader, another equally be-gemmed one which was once the property of the Bey of Tunis, several art objects in gold and a number of miniatures.

The total value of the loot was placed at approximately $2,700,000.

The thieves themselves got only 30,000 francs (about $1,200). They took the various smaller gems from their mountings, threw the settings, some of which were of great value, into the Seine and sold the stones to unsuspecting reputable jewelers. The Seine is being dragged at a spot indicated by thieves.

FEAR MISSING WIFE SLAIN BY INSANE DOCTOR

Washington, Dec. 20.—An intensive search was in progress today for Mrs. Gladys Walter Houck twenty-seven, wife of Dr. Knute H Houck, a specialist in mental diseases, who apparently has become a victim of his own specialty.

Dr. Houck, violently insane, was found in Hornell, N. Y., dressed in laborer's clothing. Hhe was first sent to the Willard State Hospital at Ovid for observation and then allowed to return to Washington in charge of a doctor and a nurse.

Mrs. Houck was last seen Tuesday night at the apartment here which she occupied with her husband and their three-year-old son.

On Wednesday Dr. Houck left a bundle of clothing to be burned in the furnace and disappeared. Examination of the bundle disclosed articles of women's apparel, since identified as belonging to his wife

COOLIDGE NAVY MOVE WARNING TO EUROPE

Washington, Dec. 20.—The House Naval Affairs Committee today approved and decided to demand prompt action on the Butler ten-cruiser authorization bill.

The President consented to the authorization or ten new 10 000-ton cruisers—provided the present Congress refrain from appropriating any money to build the three cruisers already authorized under the 1924 program.

Senator Edwards (D.) of New Jersey announced he will introduce a bill appropriating the $165,000,000 necessary to build the ten cruisers which the President has consented to being laid down on paper.

KEEP UP THE FIGHT.

In the House, Representative Fred Britten (R.) of Illinois, leader of the "Big Navy" group, announced he will not abandon his fight for the going ahead with the three 1924 cruisers.

The opponents of the administration's naval policy point out that congressional "authorization" of new ships means nothing unless the accompanying funds are voted to begin construction. They characterize the ten projected cruisers as "paper ships."

"The President merely traded ten paper ships to Chairman Butler of the House Naval Committee for three actual ships," said one member of the committee. "If the administration is sincere in its intention of bringing the navy's cruiser strength up to that of Great Britain and Japan it can hardly object to Congress accompanying the passage of the Butler bill."

WARNING TO EUROPE.

Mr. Coolidge, in his message to Congress took a firm stand against any appropriations for new naval construction. That policy, it was said today, has not been changed.

In some quarters, the President's willingness to stand for the ten-cruiser program was regarded as a subtle diplomatic move. It can be interpreted as a warning to Europe that unless the powers are willing to undertake another arms conference for limitation of cruisers, submarines and auxiliary craft the United States intends going ahead with an ambitious program of construction.

MISSING GIRL'S BODY IS WASHED UP BY THE SEA

Swanage, Dorset, Eng., Dec. 20 (A.P.)—The body of Miss Una Crowe, 20-year-old daughter of the late Sir Eyre Crowe, who disappeared a week ago, was found in the sea here, fully clothed.

Death was apparently caused by drowning several days ago. There were no marks of violence on the body. Swanage is the place where Miss Crowe's father, whose death affected her nerves, is buried.

Miss Crowe, whose father was permanent under-secretary of the Foreign Office until his death last year, left her home on December 11 to visit a friend.

spendthrift uses an inheritance acquired without work.

HERE IT was said, "Beethoven is one of the five greatest men that ever lived." William Inglis of Detroit, who makes wire, iron work and brass, asks, "Who are the other four?"

They are Archimedes, science; Shakespeare, writing; Michael Angelo, art; Newton, mathematics.

What name would you substitute? Not Alexander, Caesar or Napoleon, who will be classed with the hooded cobra when men become civilized.

YOU MIGHT want a philosopher, Socrates, Plato, Aristotle or Bacon. But greatness in philosophy is a matter of opinion. You might want one of the great star men, Copernicus, Tycho Brahe, Kepler, Galileo. But the five chosen will do. Try to beat them.

SPORTSMEN want cats and other destructive animals destroyed because they kill so many game birds. They are like the boy that couldn't let his smaller brother kill the big bluebottle fly. He wanted to kill it himself.

SHOTGUNS carrying many cartridges, ingenious "blinds" and decoys give the poor birds slight chance. Proud sportsmen are photographed with scores of dead ducks in rows behind them.

MR. E. T. GUNDLACH suggests that sportsmen devote some energy to taxidermy, mounting skilfully, which they can easily learn to do, their finest specimens.

If they would devote 90 per cent of their time to mounting what they kill, that would give the birds and deer a chance, and, incidentally, prolong for some years the pleasure of killing.

AS THOUGH JAPAN has not had enough trouble with her earthquakes, Levis Noble of the United States geological survey says the Japanese islands will eventually disappear completely below the waters of the Pacific.

Japanese scientists reveal the fact that an island in Kyusu bay vanished three hundred years ago, drowning 5,000.

HOWEVER, JAPAN may stay above water longer than some other countries. Scientists show that South America, not so long ago, as geological periods go, was completely under water. The chalk cliffs of England were manufactured by tiny marine creatures at the bottom of the sea. And you find oyster shells on high mountains, lifted up from the ocean bottom.

Fortunately these things happen slowly and have no bad effect on real estate values. Our North Pole performs its circle only once in 17,000 years. When it last pointed to our present North Star, the human race was still 5,000 years from the end of the Stone Age. Our lives are so short that nothing much matters, except doing the best we can.

ADMIRE the wisdom of Mussolini. The birth rate is falling in Italy, and, although that nation is constantly seeking foreign population outlets, Mussolini does not intend that the Roman blood, inherited by the Italian people, shall fade away.

After January 1 any bachelor under sixty will be taxed. Mussolini will prove that two can live as cheaply as one by making it more expensive for ONE.

Unmarried women will not be taxed. Mussolini knows that a majority of them would be married and do their duty—if the right man came.

AMUNDSEN and Nobile disagree unpleasantly about the trip of the Norge to the North Pole. Established facts are that the Italian, Nobile, directed the building of the Norge, planned it, commanded it during its successful flight, with everybody on board under his orders.

Excepting the compass, without which the trip couldn't have been made, the chief credit goes to the Italian.

POPE DEPLORES ATTACKS ON MUSSOLINI

Rome, Dec. 20.—Pope Pius today gave considerable attention to political relations between the church and the State, in an allocation delivered in a secret consistory.

The Pope reviewed at length the religious controversy in Mexico, deplored Fascist violences following the last attempt upon the life of Premier Mussolini and criticized French Nationalists who use their religion for political purposes.

ON CHICAGO CONGRESS.

Looking backward over the religious year, the Pope stressed the success of the Chicago Eucharistic Congress and called attention to the beatifications and the St. Francis celebrations.

The reference made today by the Pope to the internal situation was the first he has made in an allocation. He reminded his audience of the indignation aroused by the attempts against Mussolini and recalled that he was the first to offer thanks to God for the Premier's escape.

However, the Pope deplored the Fascist violences against Catholic institutions which followed the last attempt against the Premier and expressed his displeasure at the threat made by the Fascists to order juvenile Catholic organizations to be disbanded and supplanted by Fascist boys' organizations.

CHURCH AND STATE.

His Holiness expressed the hope that all suspicions between the church and state might be overcome and that there might be cooperation for the common welfare.

In regard to the situation in Mexico, the Pope said:

"We cannot help denouncing once more the persecution which for many months has raged in Mexico with inhuman ferocity. Impiety especially, according to news received at the last moment, has become even more cruel. We have been informed that venerable bishops have been torn from their sees, the government concentrating, incarcerating and even killing pious ecclesiastics and slaughtering the unarmed faithful praying before the venerated sanctuary of the Most Holy Virgin."

HAVE CRUCIFIED CHRIST.

The Pontiff added that the Mexican government had even persecuted and crucified Christ, not only in the sacrament, but even in his image, the persecution extending inside private schools despite the protests of young students.

"With inexpressible tenderness we send our paternal praise and our paternal benediction upon these," the Pontiff said.

The Pope then dealt with the Catholic situation in France, saying that it was not permissible for Catholics to join or co-operate in any program putting politics before religion and making the latter serve the former. It was not permissible to Catholics, he said, to support or to read any newspaper written by men whose writing are condemned by Catholic dogma and morals.

TWO NEW CARDINALS.

The pontiff urged French Catholics not to remain divided in their religion because of politics, but to unite in the field of the church, its divine right and of Christian marriage, Christian family, Christian schools and Christian teaching.

Each Catholic, however, he said should preserve his just liberty of following with legal and honest means those political programs and ideals allowed by divine law.

The pontiff appointed two new cardinals, Giuseppe Gamba, archbishop of Turin, and Lorenzo Lauri, nuncio to Poland.

Dear Anne:

Let's Start the Day

With carols and listen to the grand old melodies of Yuletide reverberating through the great store of Filene's to the accompaniment of trumpet and organ. Those deep notes strike down into the universal soul of mankind and we stand silent in the hushed aisles in perfect sympathy with hundreds of others: strangers—yes, but friends for the moment.

The last chord dies away. The spell breaks, and we hasten to the Gift Shop on the second floor to see the last shipment of rare old pewter, which has just come through the customs. Pewter over a hundred years old, at least, and how much older only the connoisseur can say. But there's a Scotch Tappit hen, a rare drinking vessel of quaint lines, porringers encrusted with the precious film of the hoary years, a pair of candle sticks with oval bases, which once bore crude candles to light some timbered baronial hall. There are inkstands, pepper shakers, beautiful plates of all sizes, and one set of six most perfectly matched. A tea companion from ancient China with an oil burner beneath, and a wine cooler with odd handle, where once was tied the rope which let it down the well. There are measures, plate warmers—oh, a host of beautiful pieces to be treasured as priceless by those who know pewter, and instinctively appreciated by the rest of us who don't—even though the cost is surprisingly low.

Christmas, More Christmas

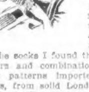
While these few days remain, let's fill them to the brim with all the joy and beauty that is in them. Let's go where color lives, where perfume fills the air and all the growing things lift up their heads in exultation.

And where better could we go than to Penn's, the Florist, for there we'll hear the hallelujah chorus of the flowers. The majestic crimson poinsettias triumphant in their glory, the pink azaleas flooded with the rose of dawn, the delicate white freesia, forerunner of the shy sisters of Spring; rugged heather from the bonny braes of Scotland, violets, roses, the trailing laurel and graceful ferns; even the pungent pines from the forest and holly from the southlands; flowers from everywhere, brought to the height of their blooming because "once a child was born to Mary—in a manger." And because through all the years that have rolled on their way since that day there has never been found a tribute more lovely, so entirely free from flaw and so worthy to be laid before the altars of our friendships and our loves than a simple living flower.

You feel it there at Penn's. Masses of flowers smile at you, and you find yourself smiling back. Their radiance sends a golden ray into your very heart, and, before you know it, Christmas has caught you again. The same old spirit you thought you'd outgrown—the eternal youth, beauty and joy of the world. You want to give it with both hands, share it with your dearest, and, after all, the best way is to "Say it with Flowers."

Men's Socks

Have been abused. Everything that isn't a plain dull color is called a "fancy." And they aren't "fancy" at all. At least, those I saw down at the Norfolk Hosiery Company aren't. That is the little shop on the street floor arcade of the Little Building, 80 Boylston Street, you know, where you went for the black silk stockings at $1.15, and the silk and wool for $1.00. (Don't let me forget to tell you that the latter are now 89c a pair, two pair for $1.50.)



The socks I found there had stunning, rich colors and combinations of colors designed into patterns imported from the Scottish links, from solid London, gay Paris and the Riviera. But they weren't loud. They are beautiful, dignified and in extreme good taste.

Some of the silk and wools were as low as 39c a pair; the warm, heavy cashmere were [illegible], the [illegible] socks I found marked down to 69c (three pair for $2.00) and the other prices were equally moderate. In fact, having been there twice for hosiery of the gentler sex, I decided that this was a mighty good shop for men's socks, too. And you're going to agree, just as soon as you see them.

Yesterday I Met

A girl looking dull, drab and doleful. Tired to death and all dragged out. She said she had been getting ready for Christmas and was almost done.

Done nothing! She hadn't even started. She hadn't begun to prepare herself, for all the fun and frolic was to come. So I telephoned L. Max, Beach 2691, and made her appointment at once, there at the artistic shop at 154 Boylston Street (on the third floor).

Oh, what difference a few hours make! Especially under the supervision of L. Max who knows what a woman needs to bring out her latent charm. She came out on tiptoe with delight: manicured, shampooed, and a permanent wave that simply caressed the lovely lines of her head. A soft, graceful wave as natural and full of life as the little curls of her baby days. A wave which the Frederic method is sure to give under his practiced hand. And somewhere during the process the heavy weariness in her face had gone, and she felt truly ready for Christmas.

Have Your Accessories

Correct and your costume is correct. Thus speaks Paris for the coming months, for no new line or fabric distinguishes the approaching styles. They remain the same and the high lights of mode point directly toward your accessories—your umbrella, gloves, jewelry and shoes — these are the little things that count.

Which turns our attention now to the London Harness Company, 60 Franklin Street, for that's the House of Perfection in sport equipment, traveling equipment, the fine appointments in the home and the little conveniences a man or woman must have.

Their umbrellas stand out particularly as the sort one would like to own, chosen to conform with the last dictates of Vogue, and yet no more expensive than anywhere else. In fact, for $5.75 you can get a stunning silk umbrella, its sixteen ribs amber tipped, with amberite handle and heavy silk cord—in plain colors or bordered with soft Roman stripes. A child's umbrella of cheerful red gloria cloth and a most affectionate and saucy kitten on the handle with amber eyes and a red jockey cap over one ear is but $3.50. Then there are the new suit case umbrellas which every traveler must have; pagoda umbrellas and umbrellas of all the really good designs.

Their gloves are most unusual, of the finest leather known. Exquisite French kid, suede like velvet, pigskin, dogskin and now the goatskin, with a cut and finish which can only come from over the seas and far away.

'A Wave in Your Head

Sets a ripple in your disposition. It really does, a curly krinkle of charm which comes from the delight of knowing that your hair is perfectly lovely and is going to stay that way. The light in your eyes sparkles every time you catch sight of the gleaming lustre on the crest of each soft undulation, and if dimples there be, then dimples there are, and the revelation of beauty is complete.

You're laughing at me now. You know I'm describing the permanent wave turned out by the Brady sisters, Dorothy and Emilie, in their new shop, the "Emilie," on the sixth floor of the Blake Building, 59 Temple Place. And it's true, for every girl who has one does have a charm that goes straight through her disposition. In the first place, it's an easy, loose wave, following the lines of your head in natural curves, which is the very latest mode a la gay Paris. And then it only costs $20, a special offer for a few weeks, which is an added boost to the disposition. Especially since the price includes the permanent, the first finger wave and two following finger waves, which train the hair the way it should go for ever and ever. (At least for six months.)

So why not start the New Year right and make a lovely Christmas rose out of yourself. Visit the shop anyway, and be pruned and groomed for the holidays. Mr. Bartel will clip and bob you. Miss Jeanette will marcel you, if it's a marcel you want, and I prophesy that when you come out it will be with the firm determination to go right back and get a permanent, too.

"Priscilla — Please Tell Me

A little something about those dresses at Evelyn's (3 Winter Street), for $12.95." Only a few minutes ago a call came asking that. And, of course, it's a pleasure to do so.

Yesterday I saw a perfectly beautiful wool crepe there in one of those heavenly shades of green, piped with darker green and wee small buttons. A two-piece model in stunning tailored lines. And its price was $12.95

Then I saw a georgette over a fine silk slip with three tiers of knife pleating on the skirt and graceful pleating at the cuffs. This comes in the three-toned effects in tan, blue and rose beige. Another model of georgette is shirred in the front of the skirt and at the top of the sleeves, with a tailored ribbon belt and severe little bow, like a charming young girl who tries to be businesslike and succeeds in being [illegible].

There were satin crepes with scalloped tiers, modish blacks, the new blues, in fact a bewildering selection of lovely gowns at that low price. Some dresses for more, some for less, and friendly Evelyn to find you just what you want.

Here's a Blissful Tale

Just waggin' itself to pieces to wish you a Merry Christmas.

Can you guess where I found it, Anne? Over in the Unity Lending Library Shop (7th floor, of the Unity Building, 185 Devonshire Street) The shop where we are finding our sweetest, funniest and happiest cards And a lot of other things besides. Exquisite little bottles of perfume; a motherly book in blue and white, with big slate and pencil to record the things you most always forget. A dusky mammy, whose capacious apron holds the elusive ball of string boxes of incense, dainty hankies, compacts, and sweet scented soap.

It's a friendly shop, where you can run in for the latest book, a bit of candy, a bridge prize that is different, and a gift to fit any occasion.

Talbot's Shirts

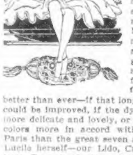
Should be designed with sprays of holly and silver bells, for there's an aura of Christmas about them, even though they accompany a man through seven days of every week and trot off to the laundry fifty-three times a year.

"Ah, there's a gift that's a gift," says the man who knows clothes. "English broadcloth shirts. I know the make, I know the wear and I know the price you must have paid." He knows a lot, the average man. But here's something "Every woman knows." The annual Christmas shirt sale is in full swing over at Talbot's, 395 Washington Street, with those splendid broadcloth shirts reduced to $1.15, three for $3.25. Imported broadcloths for $1.95, silk shirts in rich, colorful stripes, at $4.85. Madras shirts, radium silk shirts, Manhattan shirts, Bates-Street shirts and even the Earl & Wilson shirts. A grand and glorious festival of shirts, most drastically reduced for the thrifty giver.

But she knows still more, the woman who holds her hand upon the budget. She knows that belts, warm, well-made underwear, gloves, bathrobes and sweaters receive a genuine welcome from her man. They give him real pleasure and satisfaction, and they give her a chance to fit him out with the things which he has to have soon anyway. And just to show how much the modern woman really knows, she goes to Talbot's to get them.

With Heads Among

The stars we walk, but with our feet firmly planted upon this ground. And those practical, sensible feet of ours take us around to Talbot's, 395 Washington Street, up to the Holeproof hosiery counter. For as long as Holeproof keeps faith with us we will keep faith with them.



And they have done so. New shipments are holding stocks full and unbroken, in spite of the tremendous demand. No odds and ends are offered to be swallowed in the great buying season, but the same fresh, beautifully fashioned hosiery, better than ever—if that long strand pure silk could be improved, if the dyes could be made more delicate and lovely, or if there were any colors more in accord with the dictates of Paris than the great seven shades created by Lucile herself—our Lido, Casino, Chanel, Celeste, Renard, Maxine and Fanchon.

Every thread, every stitch, every operation in the making of that hosiery is designed to strengthen the bond of friendship between you and the House of Holeproof. So you get the best there is on the market today, there at the big cheerful counters. Sheer faultless chiffon at $1.00 a pair, service weight silk at the same. Our old favorites at $1.55, and our very best "Sunday-go-to-meeting" at $1.95.

And isn't it a comfort to realize that right up to the last minute of the last day they have arranged to keep every shade, every size and number complete for the delayed buyer?

If You Want

To send a symbol of beauty and devotion into the home of one of your friends, send a flower, a great, glorious spray of roses packed in a satiny white box with a beautiful card of the Little Flower. Such as I saw at the Ave Maria Gift Shop, room 430 of the Little Building (80 Boylston Street). A wee friendly shop devoted entirely to religious articles and church goods. These roses have exquisite medallion pictures of St. Theresa hidden in their golden centers, and complete with the card and the box cost but $1.00.

But perhaps you'd rather send an exquisite statue in soft ivory finish, from $1.50 to $6.00 a framed picture with a prayer, a gold or silver ring, or the creamy colored candles with her picture upon them, at 50c apiece. There are so many things of this nature which lend a hand and give courage along the way—and the Ave Maria shop is such a lovable shop in which to find them.

There — It's Time

Now to close the day's occupations and say good night to myself. A ceremony which I perform most faithfully with a soft bit of cotton and the preparations of Virozol.

First comes the Virozol Almond Cream ($1.00) to remove all the dust and dirt of the day. Every tiny crevice and pore is cleansed and the network of sensitive nerves completely relaxed at its touch. Then Virozol Swedish Face Bath ($1.25) is dabbed on most gently, with instant rejuvenating effect. The blood quickens, the thirsty pores respond, muscles tighten up and broken tissues rebuild. Instantly the fatigue and strain is wiped away and your skin glows with health.

When I say good night in this way my mirror says, "A good night to you, and tomorrow a good day will be."

If you would like to try a Virozol facial before getting the cream and the face bath, go to Russo's, there at 110 Tremont Street, the New Studio Building. They were among its first enthusiasts and carry the complete line.

Faithfully yours,

Priscilla

ROOSEVELT CLUB STARTS ANNUAL DRIVE

The Roosevelt Club, through its president, Robert M. Washburn, has started the annual drive to do away with the election by the people of their attorney-general, state treasurer, auditor and secretary of State.

In bills filed today at the State House Washburn asks these constitutional officers be appointed by the Governor or selected by the old hand-picked methods in party conventions. He would have the Lieutenant-Governor preside over the Senate. Another measure, advocated by Washburn, would penalize those who fail to vote by fines or other means.

COOLIDGE INVITED TO EAST GREENWICH, CT., FETE

Washington, Dec. 20 (A.P.)—President Coolidge was invited today by Senator Metcalf, Senator Gerry and the Rhode Island congressional delegation to attend the 250th anniversary of the founding of East Greenwich, R. I., to be celebrated next September. The President was told that the Veterans of Foreign Wars would hold their annual convention in East Greenwich at that time and that the veterans were anxious that he attend their meeting.

Pleasant surroundings count. If you are not satisfied with your room there's a suitable one listed for you in today's Classified Columns. Classification 30.

BETTY ALDEN'S SCINTILLATING COMMENT ON GREATER BOSTON'S SOCIETY HAPPENINGS

Modern Viewpoint Much Altered by Flapper

IS IT TRUE AS BRADLEY MARTIN opines, that the flapper has revamped the social scheme? That due to this "gay, life-loving forthright creature," as he calls her, the social whirl is now far less exclusive than in other days, but heaps and heaps more fun? That Society, being not so smart and formal as in the days of Mrs. Astor, offers to its younger participants, the flapper and her swain, just that much greater degree of true enjoyment. Mr. Bradley Martin says so, and Mr. Martin is, socially, very much in the know.

WHAT ABOUT BOSTON and its social set? Do Mr. Bradley Martin's generalities fit the local case? Has Miss Debutante Boston dispensed with much of the fussy formality and punctilio that cluttered the progress and in their place injected much pep and debonnaire enjoyment? Oh, yes, most decidedly and assuredly and emphatically, has she done all these things. The ways of 1926 and the days of, say, 1906, have no remotest similiarity.

COSIDER, FOR INSTANCE, the matter of the debutante ball. Miss 1926 takes her way about the fashionable mazes quite unencumbered as to social restrictions considered comme il faut when Mother was a girl. When Mother went out to parties, in her thrilled and wide-eyed first Winter, a maid went with her, to wait with other duennas until Milady had danced her fill, and then to return her charge to the paternal rooftree.

NOW, IF YOU PLEASE, Miss 1926 carries her own latchkey. No sleepy-eyed maid waits in the purlieus of the dressingroom, to see her safely home. It is entirely otherwise. When the last wailing note of the final syncopation has died away on the perfumed ballroom air, then Miss Debutante and her chosen set commandeer their motors and away for a bit, say of crisp bacon and a dish of golden eggs, in some all-night lunch that is the favorite eating place of the hour.

AND ALL THIS, mind you, after she has danced her satin shoes almost through with a succession of gallants who "cut in" every few measures. For to be a belle in these hectic times a girl musa be "cut in on" at least once in every round of the ballroom. Hence the enormous stag lines at all the dances in the proportion of "three to one" that every hostess feels it necessary to provide, else the debbie will not pronounce it, "a perfectly lovely party."

OH, SHE'S A GAY young thing, ready for frolic and dance, and ready as well for the more serious duties that fall to her debutante-ish lot. She moves serenely on, unharried by the views and opinions of savants or philosophers. Writers and millionaires may discourse at length; queens and royalties may dash into print about her. Visiting personages may stop half way down the gang plank to air their views. Even the hermit scientist in his Orange fastness, takes a moment from kilowatts and currents to say his say about Miss Debutante.

SHE IS, IN TRUTH, a most absorbing topic, for pen or speech. She is the very heart of the social vortex and the main reason for its being. For Miss Debutante modistes create their lovliest confections. For her florists and an army of decorators work their magic. Jewelers lay out their choicest daubles for her contemplation and chefs concoct their greatest delicacies. Fond parents and adoring relatives plan for her a coming out whirl.

IN BOSTON, the aim and ambition of every bud is to belong to the Junior League and the Vincent Club. And long before the coming out day arrives wire pulling mammas and papas are scheming to lodge their darling safely within these social strongholds. Once in, the little dear is willing to toil and spin, to answer in bright-eyed alacrity every League call for service, and to rehearse for hours on end should she be one of the chosen few for a "part" in the Vincent Club show.

AFTER SHE'S DANCED until four in the morning, ten of the clock finds her with smiling morning face doing League duty as program seller, aide, usher and what not. Just as Miss Polly Winslow and Miss Marie Louise Gray did at the Exeter Street theatre on Saturday, snatching a few hours sleep after Miss Betty Moulton's coming out ball.

Christmas Gifts for Everyone

Let us start at the top of your Christmas list on our fourth floor. Is the first name Mother, or Grandmother? Notice the lamps all about you, reflecting all the hues that will beautify a home.

Desk sets catch your eye. One of them would help Father or Uncle John to keep his desk at home in the exquisite order in which his secretary keeps his office desk.

On the third floor are antiques—furniture, china, glass, and mirrors. A big highboy would certainly hold your husband's belongings and greatly enhance the beauty of your home.

Silver, shining silver, is on the second floor. Here are gifts for the newly engaged girl and the matron. Ice cream forks to match Cousin Gertrude's set, salad forks for Grace, after-dinner coffee spoons for Constance. Less expensive gifts will be found in salts and peppers, small bowls, small vases and other pieces.

The first floor has a wonderful display of many things. Fitted suitcases and bags for travelers, bill-folds, cigarette cases, pocketbooks and purses. Only a few of the many lovely things can be mentioned here, but come in and see them tomorrow.

MEN PREFER COMFORT

Whether or not "men prefer blondes" may be open to question, but there is no argument about their preference for gifts that aid and abet their own comfort. Did you ever know a man who didn't like coddling?

He'll stick to his own fireside if it's well appointed with andirons, tongs, shovel, brush and other equipment to make care of a fire easy and pleasant. Paine's Fireplace Room shows as fine a display of fireplace fittings as you'll see in Boston. Andirons [illegible] up. Shovel, tongs and poker sets, $6 up.

Why not give the home a Paine sofa—something everyone can use for years. A 6-ft. sofa in tapestry with [illegible] floss filled seat cushions is featured at $165.

If you expect guests for the holidays, be sure the beds are comfortable. A new mattress would insure restful sleep and add infinitely to guests' enjoyment of their visit. Full size all hair custom mattress, $36. Twin size, $[illegible].

After a busy day what brighter prospect could beckon than an evening at home in an easy chair with footrest, lamp, smoking stand "and everything." Chair made in our own shops, covered in rich brown leather with large brass tacks, $145. Other comfortable chairs $58 up. Stools in many designs, $13.50 up.

What chance has his favorite night club beside a chair so inviting? And think how a gift like this improves the home. Paine's is overflowing with such double purpose gifts. Many are inexpensive indeed.

BRENON FILM IS ONE OF THE BEST

By LEO GAFFNEY.

"God Gave Me Twenty Cents," at the Metropolitan, is one of the outstanding pictures of 1926. Herbert Brenon, whose "Beau Geste" and "The Great Gatsby" have won for him a huge share in the year's distinctions, is responsible for its filming, and under his direction this Dixie Willson Cosmopolitan Magazine story is told on the screen with the same brilliance as the original narrative.

Lya de Putti

It is an unsweetened sample of life's little rough spots in old New Orleans, of a "world under the world"—and a lass who loved a sailor. Give the average movie hokum master the brothel scene for the expression of his art and he will hand out the customary "shocker"—an hour or so with the Dangerous Dan McGrews and five or ten minutes at the end for a quick conversion with haloes for all.

But Brenon and his camera have taste. The seamy side of things is suggested, never flaunted. His underworld scenes are realistic to the point of being depressing, but he wisely keeps his heroine, Lois Moran, so continuously in the foreground that nothing sordid ever comes uppermost.

Of the cast, Lya de Putti, as a woman of the streets, contributes the strongest characterization; Lois Moran is sweetly admirable; Jack Mulhall fairly outdoes himself in the role of the romping seaman, and William Collier, Jr., is hardly less effective as his pilfering buddy. In all, a forcefully acted production and, but for an oversupply of closeups, as worthily executed as the year's best.

Another feature at the Met is the John Murray Anderson stage presentation, "The Book of Dreams," in which a flaxen-haired Alice makes another trip to Wonderland in the storied company of the Mad Hatter, bounding bunnies and other playful folk. A musical tableau of Lizt's "Liebestraum," selections by organ and orchestra and the usual short films complete the bill.

By BARBARA BENTON

S. L. T., BOSTON—No need to be at all anxious about Margaret Morris, she is getting along very nicely in the film world. For the third time this season she has been "borrowed" by F. B. O. This time it is with Conway Tearle in a story circling around the humane activities of the Elks Brotherhood. Title to come.

B., WESTAWAY—Renee Adoree is divorced from Tom Moore. She can be reached through Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, Culver City, Cal. Marion Nixon is making "Let It Rain" with Douglas McLean at Famous Players, Hollywood. Don't forget to send her a quarter with your request for a photograph.

S. S. S.—Aontonio Moreno is about thirty-nine years old. Born in Spain. He broke into pictures with Mary Pickford in the old Vitagraph and Biograph days. And that's beginning to be rather some time ago. He is married to Daisy Canfield Danziger, reputed to be a lady of wealth. You ought to reach him in care of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, Culver City, Cal.

MERRY RESURRECTION IN REPERTORY BILL

GRAVE CONCERN

As the eerie "Mr. Zero" in "The Adding Machine" at the Repertory, Ralph Roberts takes you on a fascinating journey across the River Styx and shows that life in the hereafter may not be as good or as bad as it is cracked up to be.

LEATRICE JOY STARS IN FILM

Leatrice Joy, most piquant of all the boyishly bobbed De Millian heroines, is seen on the screen at the New Boston in her new star vehicle, "The Clinging Vine," adapted from the Zelda Sears stage hit which provided pleasant rompings for dainty Peggy Wood for a season or two. In it, Miss Joy amusingly disports herself with the role of the old-fashioned girl who blossomed out in flapper finery to win the man of her choice—played by Tom Moore.

Leatrice Joy

With true regard for the storied requirements, the about-to-be-glorified young lady makes up in suitably unbecoming fashion for the earlier sequences. The famous bob is made to look as severe as possible and other charms are carefully modified by an [illegible] wardrobe in order that the ensuing rehabilitation may shine by contrast—and prove properly fatal to the desired male.

In mannish tweeds, Miss Joy guides the destinies of a large industrial concern as only a film heroine can. Her position as head of the firm gives her full power to hire and fire at will, and when she dismisses one of the men who seem inclined to spend the company's time fussing around with a personal matter—the invention of a trick egg-beater—it is then that she realizes her fondness for the recalcitrant gentleman.

How she wins him and $17,000 extra into the bargain is an amusing development of the story that ends, as all comedy-romance must, with a trip to the altar and great expectations of unending bliss to come.

On the stage at the Boston, the holiday vaudeville bill is headed by a bright musical revue called "Stepping Along." Walter Ferner and Company have an uproarious comedy sketch, the Gold Medal Quartet furnish "Volumes of Harmony," and other turns and short films complete the program.

Pleasant surroundings count. If you are not satisfied with your room there's a suitable one listed for you in today's Classified Columns. Classification 90.

MESSIAH GIVEN 153D HEARING

By MOSES SMITH

The oldest tradition in the musical life of Boston—the annual performance of Handel's "Messiah" by the Handel and Haydn Society—was renewed yesterday afternoon at Symphony, when the 153d performance by the local organization was given under the baton of Emil Mollenhauer.

Handel's dramatic music has probably not aged one whit since the Handel and Haydn Society first sang it over a century ago. And, in fact, repeated hearing still makes one marvel at a score that retains the admiration of the listener almost two centuries after it was written.

The danger comes in making the rendition itself a tradition, and the Handel and Haydn Society have been by no means immune from this danger. Yesterday's performance, as a whole, was not up to the standard of last year's. The chorus sang well, and Mr. Mollenhauer conducted with his accustomed skill. But the solo-singing was not that of the "old days" or even more recent ones.

Rhythmic confusion between one of the soloists and the ochestra at one place, and an unfortunate mechanical difficulty in the organ during the playing of the Pastoral Symphony, were regrettable. Of the principal singers, Joseph Lautner, tenor, was possessed of the best voice, an organ of great beauty and occasional power and dramatic force. If Mr. Lautner would only sing with less stiffness and self-consciousness, he would indeed be a first-rate performer. For in addition to his many other virtues he sings with good musicianship.

Gertrude Ehrhart, soprano; Grace Leslie, alto; and Royal Dadmun, bass, were the other soloists. The Boston Festival Orchestra and Frank H. Luker, organist, also assisted. The performance will be repeated tonight.

The Flonzaley Quartet gave a concert at the Boston Public Library last night before an audience that crowded all available sitting and standing room in the lecture hall.

OLYMPIA FILM HILARIOUSLY AMUSING

The engaging spectacle of "Ladies at Play" is now on view at the Washington Street Olympia. They play rather rough at times but it is all calculated to bring about a very proper marriage, an inheritance of a paltry six millions — and a money's worth of hilarity for the audience.

Doris Kenyon

It is somewhat of a breath-taker at odd moments, but picture-goers are getting acclimated to the various pleasantries that go with a series of farcical situations calling for the heroine to be "compromised," with the object—matrimony.

Doris Kenyon, as heir to so much stage money, is seen in frenzied pursuit of Lloyd Hughes, the young hotel clerk whom she wishes to marry in order to obtain full title to this trifling sum.

Of course there are two spinster aunts who must O. K. the choice of mate for the insouciant miss before banding over, forsooth, these much monies. It isn't hard to guess, then, that the otherwise estimable Lloyd does not quite meet the Sunday school approval of the prim aunties, who appear, for the sake of stark contrast to the flapper niece, like the caricatured figures on the old-fashioned valentines.

In high dudgeon, the good ladies, very comically played by Louise Fazenda and Ethel Wales, declare all bets off. What happens when the disappointed heroine frames up a counter compromise on the aunts make rough going for the aunts and enormous hilarity for the audience.

Other films and a bill of vaudeville complete the program.

CORINNE GRIFFITH IN FILM AT FENWAY

"Syncopating Sue," an exceedingly well acted and directed comedy of Broadway life, is the featured attraction at the Fenway for the first half of the week.

In it, the gorgeous Corinne Griffith has a rest from the grande dame type of role she is most frequently called upon to portray and, instead, appears as an energetic little song-plugger of Tin Pan Alley. She spends her days thumping out the latest "hot" tunes to an admiring clientele of a music store, and her evenings—many of them—are pre-empted by Tom Moore as her trap-drummer sweetheart.

On the same bill, a burst of melodrama is generously provided in "Lost At Sea," in which such people as slinking villains have such things as "just retribution" visted upon them for assorted high crimes and misdemeanors . In the cast are Huntley Gordon, Lowell Sherman, Natalie Kingston and Jane Novak.

MLLE. SOREL APPEARS HERE ON JANUARY 3

The opening of the Boston engagement of Mlle. Cecile Sorel and the Comedie Francaise, has been postponed until Monday, January 3.

This announcement is made from the Boston office of the Shuberts who, are directing the American tour of the distinguished French actress. Mlle. Sorel was to have come to the Boston Opera House the Monday after Christmas, but her present New York engagement has been so singularly successful that it has been necessary to extend it for one more week.

Cecile Sorel and La Comedie Francaise will, therefore, open at the Boston Opera House on Monday, January 3rd.

Dolores Costello to Make "A Million Bid"

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
Universal Service Motion Picture Editor

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 20.—Dolores Costello, John Barrymore's attractive leading lady, has been given Alan Crosland as her director in "A Million Bid." This is a bit of news worth digesting with your morning coffee and rolls since Mr. Crosland was the bone of much discussion between Warners and United Artists during the time John Barrymore was preparing to move to the U. A. studios to make "Francois Villon."

Dolores Costello

Mr. Crosland had previously directed Mr. Barrymore in "Manon Lescaut," and again he has been signed by Jack Warner. Little Miss Costello seems to have gotten over her recent annoyance at the Warners. Possibly that pleasant little addition to her salary check each week helped restore her former sweet disposition.

Certainly Warners are doing everything to make her happy, even to changing the name of Darryl Zanuck's original scenario, "Good Time Charley," to "A Million Bid."

Mind you, "A Million Bid" is the name of a former Vitagraph picture which starred Anita Stewart and it has no more to do with the Zanuck original than the man in the moon, but according to the somewhat vague logic of Warners, it's a better name for a woman's picture. Warner Oland has the role of "Good Time Charley," opposite Miss Costello.

MELODRAMA AT TWIN HOUSES

Varying styles of melodrama from a tempting menu on the Modern and Beacon screens. "Pals in Paradise," taken from Peter B. Kyne's gold rush story, is a real thriller with hero and heroine combining to drive bad men away. It is a good Western drama, dealing with rough miners, prospecting in flivvers instead of on burros; a Western saloon with a soft drink bar, dancing girls in Parisian gowns of softest texture, and crooks in fashionable garb.

Marguerite de La Motte, leading lady in Douglas Fairbanks' "Three Musketeers," and later in "The Unknown Solder," has the featured role. Another star in the cast is Rudolph Schildkraut, who has already contributed two remarkable screen characterizations in "His People" and "Young April." John Bowers and May Robson serve to give the cast considerable distinction.

Thrills of the old Bowery melodrama days are offered in "Sin Cargo," the other picture on view this week at the twin houses. The picture is just what might be expected from a film bearing such a title. Playgoers in general will find it exciting and fascinating, for it tells about a girl who wants to be good and who is invited on a yachting cruise with folk who want very much to be bad.

Many good used cars driven only a few hundred miles, are offered daily at sacrifice prices through today's Classified Ads. Classification 140.

Waffles can be no better than the Syrup ..that's on them —and what's the "best" syrup? You'll know as soon as you have tried this simple recipe with Mapleine. It makes a syrup of matchless flavor, yet so simple and inexpensive you can serve it every day!

Use this Easy Recipe!

Pour 2 cups of boiling water over 4 cups of granulated sugar and flavor with 1 teaspoon of Mapleine. Stir well, thoroughly dissolving sugar. (One quart of delicious syrup for less than 12 cents!)

To wash greasy dishes easily, dissolve a little washing soda in hot water before washing them. The juice of a lemon added to the washing water is also good.

COOKIES TAKE TRIP WEST

Since the advent of the new almost-ready-to-cook oatmeal, I'm frank to admit that my family has enjoyed hot and steaming breakfast cereal more frequently than it did when oatmeal cooking was at least a half hour job and really required an hour's boiling to bring out the full flavor.

With oats in their new form, my hot cereal is cooked to perfection at about the same minute that the coffee shows just the right color in the percolator.

Heavens! I'm getting so enthusiastic about this new cereal that I'm forgetting what I started to tell you about and which is the Newoata cookies that are shown in today's picture.

They certainly are the best ever and especially wholesome for the kiddies. They tell me that they keep well, too, but I can't vouch for this as I've never been able to keep a crockful over night.

Anyway, here is the recipe, and I can't refrain from telling you that the cookies were so good that the Boston representative of the folks who make the oatmeal sent a box of them out West to their home office so that they might enjoy a first-hand sample of New England cookery.

NEWOATA COOKIES

Three-quarters cup shortening, 1 cup brown sugar, 1 egg, 2 cups oatmeal, ½ cup water, 1½ cups flour, 1 tsp. salt, 1 tsp. cinnamon, ½ tsp. cloves, ¼ tsp. nutmeg, ½ cup raisins, chopped; 1 cup nut meats, chopped.

Cream the shortening, add the sugar and beat until smooth. Add egg, oatmeal, water and flour, which has been sifted with the remaining dry ingredients. Add the chopped raisins and nut meats. Drop by spoonfuls on a greased baking sheet and bake in a moderate oven for about ten minutes. This makes 30 cookies. Their success depends a lot on the brand of oatmeal. We'll tell you the name of the kind we used if you'll drop us a card.

THE YULETIDE ROAST

For a Yuletide roast of beef, I'd suggest an 8-pound tip of the sirloin for roasting. Score the top fat in parallel crossings in diagonal lines and in the center of each of these diamonds make an incision of the right size to hold a button onion. They can be held on by a toothpick if necessary. Then sprinkle with salt and flour, set on the rack in the roasting pan and place in a hot oven without a drop of water. Then proceed as usual, allowing 2 to 2½ hours for the 8-pound roast. When the roast comes out, remove the onions and in their place insert uncooked cranberries. Trim with parsley and arrange around the roast seasoned baking powder biscuits made by your usual recipe, adding a teaspoon of poultry dressing to 2 cups of flour. Brush with melted butter before baking.

KITCHEN BLACK SHEEP

THE FRYING PAN'S usually the black sheep of the kitchen. Yours won't be if it's of genuine stainless steel. Most up-to-date fitting of the modern kitchen. A brilliant, shiny pan that's a joy to see and use. A gem of a pan, handsome enough for a gift. Strong and sturdy as its own steel. Cannot rust or scale with hardest use. Easy to clean; cooks more evenly than any other pan. Non-heating handles. Built for a lifetime of wear.

CHRISTMAS COOKIES STRIKE a holiday note if they're rolled with picture rolling pin. Twelve prints on a roller. Make delightful gift cookies. Never-ending joy to the kiddies. 75c.

FOR THE WOULD-BE-THIN the gift of gifts is a handsome personal scale—greatest aid in reducing. A check-up on the family health, too. There's a vital relation between weight and health. Registers up to 300 pounds. Correctness certified by Bureau of Weights and Measures. Guaranteed five years, but will last a lifetime. A good investment for Christmas gold.

THESE CHIZZLY NIGHTS kiddies snooze snugly in the cutest ever nighties Pris and I have discovered. Made of famous wool and cotton mixture. Ever so soft, light and, oh, so warm. Cleverly footed to cover pink toes; drop seat. Pocket 'n everything the ideal nightie should have. Ordered direct from factory by mail on money back guarantee. Price is only $1.45. Why risk colds from clammy cotton flannels?

HOLIDAY PIES, cakes, ice creams, candies and sauces are improved for many by the addition of sherry wine and rum flavoring. 65c for 8-oz. bottle of either variety made from genuine old sherry wine and rum with sugar added for convenience. Gives the old-time flavor to Christmas cooking.

FROM PLANTATION TO TABLE comes mighty good coffee. All the flavor of a high-priced coffee at 41c. After one try you'll buy often.

CANNED ON CAPE COD is the best ever cranberry jelly—or strained if you prefer for sauce. Packed in enamel-lined containers. Comes out a perfect mold of quivering lusciousness. 23c. Lots less than you could make it for. One of the ready-to-eat foods truly better than home-made.

A GENEROUS BOX of home-made candy makes welcome gift. You'll turn out truly professional confections if you use a certain chocolate. Made specially for candy cookery. For dipping fruits, fondants, caramels, nuts, etc. Transforms 20c worth of peanuts into dollar box of chocolate-coated candy. 47c cake will cover a lot.

HELEN AND I are awfully proud of the Christmas menus and recipes we've worked out. We had plenty of copies made to meet all requests, so just let us know where we'll send yours, pronto.

ALONE IN ITS CLASS stands the only ready prepared cream tomato soup on the market. Made from pure, fresh cream and dead ripe tomatoes. Seasoned to perfection. Smooth as smooth. 10c and 15c. An investment in concentrated nutrition.

FULL INFORMATION on each or every item on request. Please enclose loose 2c stamp for prompt reply.

'Plant Luck' vs. Plant Food

I have always longed for beautiful luxuriant house plants and have spent a good many large round dollars on various varieties hoping that each experiment will prove successful. But the results were uniformly the same. After a week or two my plants, handicapped by conditions in a modern overheated apartment, gradually exchanged their verdant hue for a sad pale yellow and finally curled up their fronds and died.

The marvel to me, however, was that my unknown neighbors across the way, apparently living under the same conditions had windows full of gorgeous blooms, week in and week out. I decided that I simply didn't have what we hear so often called "plant luck," and resigned myself to a few trite artificial blossoms.

Recently, however, I learned that "plant luck" really means proper plant food, and the knack of raising luxurious house plants can be had by anyone at almost no expense of either time or trouble. There is a splendid plant food advised by famous florists and prepared by a leading horticulturist, which will keep your plants full blooming and cheerful and free from bugs and disease.

If you have a flowering plant which blossoms irregularly and sparsely, this magic food applied regularly will help to bring out more and fuller flowers. If you see leaves turning yellow and stems withering, do get a small (and very inexpensive) package of this splendid plant food and use it according to the simple directions. In a surprisingly short time you will find the leaves fresher and greener and new shoots and buds appearing.

FREE TEXTBOOK ON COFFEE

A new booklet, "A Short History of Coffee," has just been published by the W. S. Quinby Company of Boston and I know that every New England housewife will want a copy especially if she has children of school age in her flock.

This book gives the history of the coffee industry in a most interesting way and is illustrated with fascinating old wood cuts of the inns and coffee houses in London and the American colonies. It's a book invaluable to teacher and students. And the housewife will appreciate the authoritative directions for perfect coffee-making by three methods.

Do let me know if you'd like a copy of this really interesting and valuable free book.

SALAD SUGGESTION

Green pepper stuffed with cream cheese and nut meats sliced on lettuce with mayonnaise is good.

To freshen chiffon, hang up in bathroom when filled with steam. Then hang in open air.

To set the color in delicate handkerchiefs, add a teaspoon of turpentine to a basin of lukewarm water and soak handkerchiefs for ten minutes before washing; wash as usual.

To remove brown marks from dishes caused by baking, rub well with damp salt. Wash off and repeat.

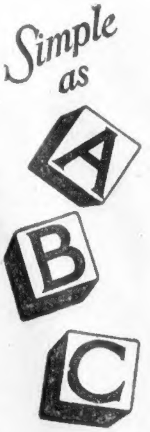
New England's Neighborhood Toll Service



Nowadays in New England, calling a distant telephone is as simple as calling a telephone across the street.

"Neighborhood Toll Service," in every detail, follows the familiar routine of a local call.

Signal your own operator.
Give her the number you want.
Hold the line for a completed connection or a report.

This is the fastest, simplest form of toll service known. Yet along both the highways and byways of speech, the miles must still be dealt with by men and women, and machines. You must not expect quite the speed of local calls.

With a few exceptions, we do not undertake at present to give this service to points beyond our own territory.

We do give it between more than a million telephones in five states. It is thoroughly practical, else it would not be offered.

If you don't know the number ask your local information operator

ASKS FOR FOOD.

Faith will remove mountains proof of it is contained in Mrs. Hannan's case. She is only one of many fine men and women who are giving unsparingly of their time and energy to our Christmas endeavor.

How would YOU like to have nothing but stale doughnuts for your Christmas dinner next Saturday? Do you think the spirit of Christmas would pervade your being? Probably not! Then consider the case of this Cambridge woman living in Elm street, who writes as follows:

"I am writing to ask you to please send me a basket of food on Xmas day. Last year we had nothing to eat but a few stale doughnuts.

"Do you think you could send me a pair of shoes size 9½ for my little boy? He has no shoes and is wearing a pair of old rubbers. Please send him a pair of shoes and send us a basket of food, and I will be so very thankful. My husband has been in the hospital almost a year and we owe 3 months rent, and I am afraid of being put in the street."

Do you ever suffer from cold in your home, or are you one of those fortunate individuals who doesn't consider warmth a luxury? In either event you will be interested to know that some families in our midst have a fire in their homes only in the evening when supper is being prepared.

WITHOUT COAL.

A woman living in Stevens street, Boston, writes:

DOLLY SAUNDERS

"It is very cold in our tenement because the other family does not make a fire until evening, just for supper, so that when our fire goes out, we nearly freeze. I am in great need of bed covering as I was forced to destroy the few I had to keep us warm on account of illness.

"My husband has been laid up on account of two fractured ribs caused by a fall. He is doing a little to help, but is not earning enough to keep us in coal and pay the rent. My eight-year-old boy is just recovering from pneumonia and is in need of clothing, so please Mr. Goodfellow, don't pass us by, for we need help. We would be much pleased if we could get a good Christmas dinner."

A saddened mother from Genesee street writes:

"I am a poor widow with several children to support and no money coming. I have just lost my 20-year-old son. If anything should come your way in the line of a position, I would appreciate having it very much, as I have got to get work to keep my family going. I have tried to get a job for quite a while, but it seems to be in vain. I need food badly, and if some Goodfellow would help me to get a position I would be ever grateful."

It is very easy to become a Christmas Goodfellow. If you wish to play the role of Santa Claus to one of the hundreds of needy families now on file in the Boston Evening American office, merely pick up your telephone receiver, call Liberty 4000, ask for the Goodfellow Editor and he will place you in touch at once with such a family.

He not only will give you the name and address of a destitute family, but also details as to what the family is most in need of. He will tell you the number of children in the family and whether little Johnny needs a pair of shoes and whether sister Mary has but one shabby dress to wear. He will also tell you whether the family needs food and fuel as well as clothing.

LIST OF FAMILIES GROWS.

If you do not wish to telephone, write. Shortly after the arrival of your postcard or letter, a reply will be in the mail advising you of the location of a family living in or near your neighborhood in order that you may extend Christmas cheer. Perhaps that very family lives just around the corner from you. The Goodfellow Editor will inconvenience you as little as possible. He will place you in touch with a family that lives nearby, so that your time may be conserved as much as possible.

If you don't wish to telephone or write, drop into the Boston Evening American office on your lunch hour today or while you are shopping, and ask for the name and address of a destitute family together with the circumstances. This information will be gladly furnished.

As Christmas approaches the list of families grows. At the present time, the Boston Evening American has on file the names and addresses of 1,800 impoverished families, most of whom live within a radius of 10 miles of the State House. All of these families are known to be worthy, their circumstances having been inquired into by Christmas Goodfellow workers.

WILLIAM F. WEBSTER, JR.

The sum of $217.59 was contributed to the Goodfellow Fund as a result of a collection made by the employes working on the new Statler Hotel. The men who were responsible for this collection are F. J. Carew, Delprat Keen, Jim Crawford and Harry Monahan. Many more families will be helped this week as a result of this fine donation.

DANCE NETS. $200.

Hundreds of destitute children will be helped on Christmas Day as a result of a wonderful contribution of $200 which came from James J. Doherty of No. 9 Mystic street Charlestown. This sum represents the proceeds from the entertainment and dancing party given in the Winter Garden Ballroom, City square, Charlestown, last Tuesday evening.

The prize waltz, which was to have been one of the features of last Tuesday evening's offering was postponed until tomorrow evening in the same hall.

Two silver bowls valued at $40 will be first prize, donated by District Attorney-elect William J. Foley. Additional prizes will be offered. Mark Hannan's All-Star Orchestra, who played last Tuesday evening, will also play tomorrow evening.

Mrs Alice Heindl who will conduct a turkey whist in Stevens Hall Needham, tomorrow evening, has arranged a special treat for her guests in the form of special dances by Miss Muriel Steverson of Dover

The Love Wrecker

A Thrilling Romance of Modern Youth in Boston

READ THIS FIRST

HONEY LOU HUNTLEY is private secretary to old "GRUMPY" WALLACK, head of the Wallack factory in Roxbury.

Everyone likes Honey Lou from ANN LUDLOW, the office vamp, to JOE MEADOWS, the shipping clerk.

Young JACK WALLACK comes to work in his father's factory. He falls in love with Honey Lou and she with him.

At a party given by ANGELA ALLEN, in love with Jack, Honey Lou drinks two cocktails, thinking they are fruit punch.

TIM DONEGAL, a friend of Jack's, begins to be attentive. One night when the two are at an out of town inn, with Honey Lou's half-sister, MARGRET MOODY, and DR. STEVE MAYHEW, they are joined by Angela and Jack. Margret sums Angela up as a "cat."

One night while Margret is out on her Summer vacation, her supposed sweetie, Dr. Mayhew, he begins to make love to Honey Lou. Honey Lou is astounded.

Jack is angrily jealous with Honey Lou because she let Steve come to the house in Margret's absence. The day Margret comes home, Lou and she stop at the factory to get some money. Margret overhears someone talking in "Grumpy's" office, and eavesdrops.

Jack finds Lou taking part in a Charleston contest in a picture show. He is shocked and disgusted, just as her mother is, and cannot see what a lark it is for Honey Lou.

Honey Lou makes up her mind to leave the Wallack factory, and forget Jack if she can.

Honey Lou hears that Angela has given a house party at her country home, including Jack but leaving herself out.

MOTHER AND 2 STRANGLED

Los Angeles, Dec. 20 (I N S)—Strangled and beaten, the bodies of a mother and her two babies were found dead in their home by police today. All of the victims had been strangled with stockings. The mother was Mrs. M. G. Haines, 38, the two children were Lorna Louise, aged 4, and Robert Leon, aged 2.

Officers were first notified of the tragedy by the frantic husband and father, M. G. Haines, who telephoned hysterically his little family had been killed.

The house, according to officers, was ransacked after the murders.

DEATH THREATS FOR PEACHES BROWNING

AFRAID TO LEAVE HER ROOMS

Mother Says Strangers Trail Her on Street; Close Guard Kept

New York, Dec. 20 (I N S.)—"Peaches" Browning has received a number of "death threats" since filing her separation suit against Edward W. Browning, her multi-millionaire middle-aged husband, her mother, Mrs. Carolyn Heenan, asserted today.

The threats, communicated by men representing themselves to be agents of the real estate dealer, have terrified "Peaches" to the point where she is afraid to venture out, Mrs. Heenan said. In fact, Mrs. Heenan declared that she [illegible] and keeping a [illegible] day and night [illegible] pounds in the last few weeks. Mrs. Heenan said [illegible] to have medical attention every day. WIFE DEFENDS DOCTOR IN WOBURN GIRL CASE

Mrs. Robert Conlin, wife of a prominent Woburn physician and real estate owner, expressed her absolute belief in his innocence when he was arraigned in Woburn District Court today, charged with having committed illegal surgery on Helen LeBlanc, 31, a Winchester girl.

He pleaded not guilty and the case was continued until January 1[illegible]. Bail of $[illegible],000 furnished by the wife of the physician at the time of his arrest Saturday night, was permitted to stand.

HALED TO COURT, MAN OFFERS TO SETTLE UP

Arrested because he owed $200 for the support of his son Henry, 9, now living with his mother who has married again, Gilbert Van Nunen of Manchester, N. H., was freed in Newton District Court today when he agreed to pay the money due. The couple was divorced last year, and Van Nunen was ordered to pay $8 a week for the support of his son. Judge Allen decided $8 was too much for him to pay, as his former wife was again married, and ordered Van Nunen to pay $5 a week hereafter.

EAST BOSTON GANG STEALS XMAS CIGARS IN 4 STORES

A gang of East Boston thieves supplied themselves in plentiful fashion with Christmas cigars today by the simple expedient of visiting four cigar stores and helping themselves to the best. The stores broken into are at No. 12 Border street, No. 243 Sumner street, No. 213 Sumner street and another store in Maverick street. The total value of the loot secured was $150.

This Is What He Did ∾ To Save Two Boys

HAD HIS CHOICE

Bernard Kelly of Roxbury made a quick decision to take a chance in the icy street rather than hit lads.

CAR GOES RIGHT INTO SHOE SHOP

Showing what a little ice will do when a driver makes a sudden turn. This was a perfectly good shoe shine parlor and repair shop at 2824 Washington street until Kelly drove in through the front window this morning, formally opening the place for the day. But Kelly saved the lives of two boys, even if he did get hurt, and the shop can be made to look like new again.

Don't Be Carried Away by Wall St. Outburst---Forbes

By B. C. FORBES

NEW YORK, Dec. 20.—Wall street had a [illegible] week—at least to all outward appearances.

The Steel Corporation, [illegible] enterprise formed a quarter of a century ago, announced what the stock market [illegible] a [illegible] melon.

[illegible] on thereupon [illegible] bond of [illegible] on Friday.

Average quotations for shares on the New York stock exchange bounded to the highest heights of the year.

So did bonds.

The air rang with rumors of other impending "melons" from many sources.

B. C. Forbes

Leading railway shares danced to the tune of the bulls to the discomfiture of the bears.

Money was available in abundance at the low rates.

The stream of year-end optimistic forecasts continued unabated, and the action of the tremendously influential directors of the steel corporation was pointed to as confirming the confident expectations held by the biggest quarters regarding the national business outlook.

The mercantile agencies reported indications of wonderfully fine, even record-breaking, Christmas retail trade.

IN SHORT, all went merry as a marriage bell. Yet—

WELL, IT DID look as if there was considerable unloading of stocks during the excitement [illegible] by the Steel directors' [illegible]. Many [illegible] being whooped up for a [illegible] and began to decline under rather heavy selling. [illegible] those at the [illegible] stock as are many [illegible] summer [illegible].

THE WRITER'S opinion is that business men should not allow their own judgment to be carried away by any excited flurry in stock market speculation.

It is, of course, encouraging to know that such powerful financial and industrial leaders as J. P. Morgan, George F. Baker and Judge Gary regard the present as an opportune time to announce distinctly more liberal disbursements to stockholders—the assumption is that the 7 per cent. rate will be maintained after the 40 per cent. additional common stock has been issued. [illegible] so, and while recognizing [illegible] a majority of fundamental conditions are thoroughly sound, the sobering factors in our situation and outlook should not be totally ignored. It would be well to remember that the stock market can go down just as swiftly as it can go up, a fact which was brought home painfully to many last February-March.

ALL THIS is not intended to foster pessimism, but is brought forward in the belief that the present is not a time to be rushed to the other extreme.

Purdy, Green Bay Pro Star, Kicks 55-Yard Drop

Chicago, Dec. 20.—The Chicago Bears and Green Bay Packers, pro football teams, played a 3-3 tie on a sleet-swept field for a Christmas fund benefit. Purdy of Green Bay kicked a 55-yard field goal in the third period, and Paddy Driscoll of Chicago kicked one for 25 yards in the fourth period. One hundred thousand tickets were sold. Only about 25,000 were present because of the weather.

Sharkey Learns Much From Early Battles

I think it also did me good to box away from home. The trouble with the development of many boxers is that they stay too often in their home towns. They fail to acquire the same confidence in their ability which they gain from campaigning around the country before strange crowds.

Weinert Wins Return Bout in Hub

The bout was about even going into the ninth round. Both of us then spurted and fought desperately during the last two frames to gain the decision. The award went to Weinert. It must have been a fairly close fight as the decision was booed by the crowd. Maybe Weinert did have the edge.

(In tomorrow's article Sharkey tells of his thrilling victory over John Renault.)

There are [illegible] two or three other men in the country who know football as he does and [illegible] as he has. Wherefore his opinion on ties is worth listening to. "I favor the elimination of ties, if it can be done in any fair and satisfactory way," he says. "I would not [illegible] an extra period or a playoff unless it could be made certain that it would determine a winner. In the California School Federation it is provided that in case of a tie each team shall be [illegible] the ball for five plays and the team gaining the most ground on those plays is the winner. This is not so bad. Imagine the thrill those ten plays [illegible] after the game. BOSTON, HOME OF GOLF, NEEDS PUBLIC COURSES

THE campaign for municipal golf courses meets with real popular approval, as it should. There are more golfers to the square foot in Boston than there are in any other city in the country. There would be five times as many if proper courses were provided for the youngsters who want to play the game but haven't the [illegible] capacity or the family money to get into the private clubs.

Golf in this country started right here in [illegible] city. George Wright and his little crowd brought the game over from England, and played with clubs that looked like shinnies, a ball that was first cousin to a rock, and courses that were merely sections of the then numerous open spaces. The uniforms were [illegible] long trousers, congress shoes and spats and things like that.

Since that [illegible] the game has spread like a rash all over the land. Other cities have five and six public courses. All crowded. We remember watching the mad rush of players at Jackson Park in Chicago where [illegible] are sent away every two or three minutes through every pleasant day from dawn to dusk. The people's courses in Chicago, St. Louis, New York and other wide-awake spots are kept up like any good private layouts.

Boston has the golfers and the land and everything, apparently, but the driving force to step by the rest of the world in this matter. Now that a campaign has started, it should accomplish wonders before another Winter rolls around.

Christmas is expected to leave something very useful on the B[illegible]

B. C. AND HARVARD SHOULD GET TOGETHER

TALK has been revived about an athletic reunion between Harvard and Boston College. This time it is based on something more than wishes. These two institutions can be among the country's best and most natural rivals. Their meetings would be sellouts, in any sport at all. It is to be hoped that quibbling will not [illegible] up a chance to repair a breach that was absurd and unnecessary. Officials of the colleges have met, and if the boys have any sense some immediate competition will come of the conference.

CORRECT MANNERS

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

[illegible] the correct method [illegible] for the introducing of one [illegible] another.

Is [illegible] introduced to the gentleman or vice versa?

A READER.

ONE of the first—and most important [illegible] to remember about making an introduction is that the gentleman is introduced to the lady. After that an introduction is fairly smooth sailing.

The always useful form for the [illegible] introduction of a gentleman to a lady is "Miss Lady, may I present Mr. Gentleman?" This is an excellent form of introduction, and one [illegible] to remember the form. If in some cases the word "present" seems a bit too formal the word "introduce" may be used.

In the very casual, informal introduction, the introduction that is often made with not much point in making it, the mere mention of the names is enough. "Miss Lady, Mr. Gentleman." This kind of introduction can be made with any degree of [illegible] that is appropriate, [illegible] is to be said with the required amount of graciousness.

When introducing two ladies about the same age to each other the mention of the names is enough. "Miss Lady, Miss Otherlady." The same is true in introducing two gentlemen, "Mr. Gentleman, Mr. Othergentleman." If in either introduction one is appreciably older than the other the name of the older one is mentioned first. If one of the ladies is married and one unmarried, the name of the married woman is mentioned first.

I am sure that from these suggestions you will have the fundamentals for introducing one couple to another.

Isobel Sees England

By WINNIFRED BLACK.

ISOBEL is doing the British Isles— [illegible]

[illegible] to Westminster Abbey and to Fleet Street. She has seen the old [illegible] inn where David Copperfield had the Micawbers to dine and had such a time with the oysters and the landlady's maid who kept falling over the plates in the passage—don't you remember?

She has seen old Doctor Johnson's house in a narrow by-street. She has seen the Tower of London and heard all about the little princes. She has been to Oxford and to Cambridge and to Windsor.

She has seen the quaint little inns in the Shakespeare country and one night she stayed at the strangest place you ever saw. It was an inn called "The Trout," and it [illegible] the clear waters of a weir in the Thames. It has been standing there for 900 years, just exactly as it is today.

In the barnyard next to the inn there are two [illegible] graves and in the graves lie Henry II of England and beside him Fair Rosamond, "the Rose of the World." And there is an inscription which brings back all the romance and all the cruelty and all the bitterness of the Dark Ages long ago.

Across from the barnyard where the fair one lies with the ducks and geese [illegible] that grows above the [illegible] that has been just for centuries—there is a fair field where the free men of Oxford may graze their cattle without money and without price, a privilege that has come down to them for hundreds of years.

Isobel has seen Our Lady's place—the old church in the old garden with the yew trees and the roses and the sundial, all just as they were when the place where Isobel lives, when she is at home, was an Indian camp.

Is Isobel interested? She is bored to [illegible]

Advice to Lovelorn

By Beatrice Fairfax

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am [illegible] the age of forty. I have been married twenty-eight years and am the mother of five children, of whom two are married.

As long as I have known my husband he has been in the habit of playing cards. Sometimes he doesn't come home for two whole nights.

There have been times when I have nearly died of hunger. But the moment he gets a dollar or two he gambles. I have tried in every way to change him. I am a good housewife and keep a nice, cozy little home. But my husband doesn't appreciate it.

Every Saturday when he comes home at 4 or 5 o'clock, and I ask of him $20 for our support. But I am lucky if I get one-half or one-fourth of that.

I have now reached a point where I feel that I can't go any further. Although I am forty I may live for thirty or more years and I would like to be happy. Kindly give me your advice.

DAILY SHORT STORY

MOTHER'S CHOICE

By Louise P. Armstrong

MRS. MELVIN WARREN was very much concerned about Doris, her eighteen-year-old daughter, though no one would have supposed it, as she sat beside her tea wagon, resplendent with its massive silver service, and dispensed hospitality to the ladies of the Bridge Club that Wednesday afternoon. Her manner, as usual, was the acme of calm graciousness. It was a remark not intended for her ears that one of her guests let fall, which gave the lady (as our French cousins have it) to think very deeply.

"They say that Doris Warren is madly infatuated with Tom Newell, that poor young man that clerks in the jewelers at Eighth street. Fancy what Mrs. Warren is going to say when the gossip reaches her!"

Mrs. Melvin Warren had a distinct mind picture of her young and lovely daughter bent in absorbed contemplation over the plateglass counter, while a fair-haired youth obsequiously displayed a tray of platinum wrist watches. There had been delight in the girl's face and Mrs. Warren had been pleased to see that she really cared so much for costly things. And after all it had only been a blind. The wretched child had probably not been thinking of the beautiful things at all, but only listening to the voice of the earnest young pauper who appeared so pleased to serve.

"Yes," she told [illegible] of her friends, speaking pleasantly: "Doris is finishing college this year. We hope to be able to send the child abroad before she makes her debut. It means so much to one of her impressionable age."

As a matter of fact, the trip abroad had only that instant flashed into the mind of Mrs. Melvin Warren. But it was characteristic of her that she should grasp at ideas and carry them out successfully. Mr. Melvin Warren [illegible] a lot of late about [illegible] and the dullness of [illegible] but she had confidence [illegible] to persuade him to do [illegible] thing by Doris. And if Doris were in danger of falling in love with [illegible] so ineligible as Tom Newell the broad Atlantic had best be between them until such nonsense was forgotten.

At 5:30 her guests began to depart, talking volubly, and lingering over their adieus [illegible] her serenity to the [illegible]. She wanted to be alone, face the possibility of having failed for the first time in her life in knowing [illegible] what was in her daughter's mind. But when the last of her guests had departed she sat before the open fire in her drawingroom and planned the best approach to make in the affair. She would not mention Tom Newell to Doris, simply ignore the presumptuous fellow. It was her husband who would be difficult—this continual talk of hard times! Well the trip abroad as the only solution!

As she thus mused, Doris came in softly, she did not see her mother where she sat in the high-backed Jacobean chair. She started to call the girl, but refrained from doing so when she heard her sigh and murmur to herself: "I'm going to talk it over with Dad. Make him understand. And I'll go through with it, that's all!"

Doris sat down by the window and jerked off the smart little tan felt hat she wore, so that her amber curls fluffed about her piquant face. Her mother could see that she was very solemn about something, her slim hands twisting nervously.

Presently the front door slammed, and Doris jumped. She did not rise, but peered into the hallway, for evening shadows were beginning to fall.

"Dad," she called softly, "come in here, please. I've something to tell you!"

The woman heard her husband's slow steps across the rugs, saw his tall, lank figure loom up in the dusky light from the window. She knew that she had no right to sit there and intrude upon the girl's confidence to her father, but her keen desire to hear what Doris would say forbade her to move. She was only going to hear what she had every right to know. Doris' future would be better for her guiding hand!

"Sit down, Dad. We're alone. Now listen to me, dear! I'm going to be married!"

There was a long silence.

Mr. Melvin Warren finally spoke in a tired voice. "So your mother has arranged that already, honey! I'd hoped she would hold off for a little while—let me see something of my little girl."

"No, Dad, you're wrong about it. I've done all the arranging. I've—considered the situation, and I've made up my mind."

There was determination in the girl's voice which astonished the listening mother. She sat up very straight, an ache in her heart.

"I did not intend to be married so soon, Dad," the calm little voice went on. "There are many things I'd like to do—have a little fun. But considering everything—well, I've just made up my mind. And I hope you will not try to persuade me against my convictions."

"What's the use," asked the grave voice of the man, "in ever trying to persuade a woman against her convictions. But I imagine your mother is going to have something to say!"

Doris laughed. It was not a pretty laugh, and to her mother it was like a blow in the face. "She is going to be delighted," she heard the girl saying. "In fact, the only reason she's liable not to embrace the idea is that she did not think of it herself! Dad, I'm going to marry M. Montgomery Morgan. I've—I've accepted him already!"

"Oh, Doris, no!" The voice of her father was raised in quick alarm. "You don't know what you're talking about, honey! Why, Doris, darling, he's old, too old for you. And—besides, dear, I've lately found out that he is an unscrupulous man—terribly unscrupulous!"

"He is a very wealthy man," Doris told him in a cold little voice. "And he has, I've been told, the controlling interest in your business, Dad!"

And in the dusk, Mrs. Melvin Warren saw her husband suddenly bow his grey head upon his hands, and sob!

"Don't think," she heard the child saying, "that I'm afraid to face anything with you, Dad. I'm not afraid of anything—poverty nor disgrace. And I'm not blaming you, darling—I love you! But it's mother we must consider. I'd rather make a marriage like that myself—than have her yank me upon the auction block to avoid a catastrophe, as she would. At least I can keep a little self-respect in making my own decision!"

The hush that followed was sharply broken by a voice raised in the hallway. "I must see Miss Warren at once, please! Stand aside!" And into the room, breathless, with eyes blazing, strode Tom Newell.

He stared at Doris, speechless for an instant, then turned savagely to her father. "You're forcing her into this! You——"

"Do not reproach either of them," said Mrs. Melvin Warren, rising from her hidden seat beside the fire-side. "I'm afraid that I've been the real cause of this misunderstanding! But I can assure you—Tom, that Doris will break off this impossible, absurd engagement! It's a great pity," she added significantly, as she moved toward the doorway, "that Doris did not see fit to ask my advice. It might have been worth something to her, after all!"

"Mother!" cried Doris, springing to her feet.

"Your father and I," she said, taking her husband by the arm, "will go now and leave you to discuss the matter with Tom. I think you'd better, dear!" The mother's voice was tender now, and very humble. "You must be sure to explain to him, however, that you'll be a very poor girl, Doris!"

Tom Newell clasped the slight figure of the girl in his young arms as the older folk departed. "As if," he declared, "that matters in the least!"

MEDBURY SAYS---

By JOHN P. MEDBURY

THE government took a census the other morning to determine how many lazy people there are in this country and discovered over 90,000. This is only half of them, 90,000 more were still in bed.

ONE woman claims her husband is so shiftless that he's been lying down ever since they were married.

HE hasn't moved for three years. She doesn't know whether to apply for a divorce or a burial permit.

SHE'S going to wait another month and then have him embalmed.

HE'S rested so much that he's worn out three couches and six easy chairs.

HE doesn't even get up to make the payments on them.

THE collectors have to come in and pick his pockets.

HE had St. Vitus dance once, but got right over it. He was too lazy to shake.

HE used to suffer from insomnia and instead of counting sheep, he counted elephants so that he could get through quicker.

HE always left the key under the mat, so that opportunity could come in without knocking.

HE didn't want to have to get up and open the door.

HE had lots of ambition but it was in his wife's name.

WHENEVER he had a cold he always let her do the sneezing.

BUT he was very particular about some things. He insisted upon doing his own sleeping.

WHEN it came to resting he could take care of himself.

HE'S in favor of a permanent day light saving law so that he can loaf longer.

BUT he's doing pretty well as is. He goes to bed at [illegible] thirty and gets up in August.

HE'S so lazy that when he [illegible] he'll probably want the undertaker to tie him in the coffin so that he won't have to turn over in his grave.

A WIFE'S MEDITATIONS---BY HELEN ROWLAND

OLD Mother Genevieve has been caught selling "love-charms" to the beauty and chivalry of all Paris.

Her favorite recipe is "extract of beet roots and essence of geraniums."

Grand and glorius! To think it's THAT easy! But, alas, her heart softeners have never had the acid-test—for they have never been tried on the macadamized heart of the Great American Bachelor!

* * *

The world is full of love-charms that have been tested and found infallible, however.

* * *

A dazzling smile, for instance, is the most potent love-charm on earth. You may have club-feet, bony knees, and an indistinguishable nose—but, if your smile is glittering, sunny, responsive and alluring, you will still be loved, wherever you go.

* * *

An inner glow of abounding vitality is a wonderful love-potion. Nobody can help being stirred to a quicker pulse beat by a man or girl full of natural "pep" and joie de vie.

* * *

A lot of money is another "elixir d'amour" that seldom fails. A halo of gold dollars has been known to transform a long nose into a Grecian profile, a pug nose into a cute little retrousse, and a wrinkle into a dimple. And what money will do to make a bald head and a baywindow attractive every middle-aged sheik knows!

* * *

A good hot dinner served to a hungry man, is the married woman's favorite love-charm, and has squeezed a lot of tender emotion plus a new Fall hat out of many an unsuspecting husband.

* * *

A flattering tongue plus a pair of dreamy, mysterious eyes is one of the most powerful love-charm combinations known to vampires and man-tamers, since the beginning of time. From Cleopatra down, this potent mixture has done its deadly work.

* * *

Amiability and a sweet sympathetic voice mixed with a dash of imported perfume is another combination that no man ever seems to be able to resist.

* * *

Oh, yes, there are dozens of sure-fire love-charms that Mother Genevieve never seems to have thought of.

* * *

There is wit (when it isn't used as a weapon to cut your own throat) and there is youth (when it isn't too raw and jazzy).

* * *

And there are personality and becoming hats, and good hosiery, and the glamour of fame, and helplessness and cuddliness and blondeness, and Spring and the moon and propinquity—AND indifference!

* * *

And yet, with the world full of love-charms, foolish women will go around smearing themselves with beet-juice and geranium essence.

* * *

But there! A woman would wear a ring in her nose, if she thought it would make the right man love her a little bit more!

BOBBIE AND HIS PA

By WILLIAM F. KIRK

MY HED is dizzy from trying to reed this artikel, sed Ma last nite.

What artikel? sed Pa.

It is a artikel about the milyuns & bilyuns of suns in Creeashun, sed Ma. It seams we used to think that we had jest one Unyversl, sed Ma, but these peeping Toms thay call astronymers, sed Ma, has been looking thru thare teleskopes & thay haf found new Unyversls, sed Ma, bigger than our own grate Unyversl, milyuns of new suns, with flocks of Plannits like our erth around them, sed Ma. It is so big it is kind of terribul, sed Ma.

It may seam terribul to yure mind, wife, sed Pa, beekaus you haf not traned yure mind to take in big things, but it is quite cleer to me, sed Pa.

I doant B-leeve it is cleer to anybody, sed Ma. It is too large for the mind to talk in, sed Ma. What a lesson in Hew-millity it shud teech, sed Ma, but it wont teech sum peepul I know to be humbel, sed Ma.

Well, sed Pa, the way it looks to me, a man or woman should be all the prouder to think thay B-long to such a greate skeem, sed Pa. Think of it, wife, sed Pa, you & I & Bobbie B-long to a mass of Unyversls so grate thare is no way of unner-standing its size, sed Pa. Doant that maik you feel kind of chesty? sed Pa.

Ma laffed. I jest knew thare wud be sum way for you to look at it, sed Ma, wich wud N-able you to throw a bokay at yurself, sed Ma. I jest knew it.

That is the only way to look at it, sed Pa. Peepul shud reelize that thay are part of a skeem so big thay cant meshur it, sed Pa. If I am part of sumthing big, sed Pa, why shud I feal small?

Doant worry, sed Ma, you will nevver feal small.

I doant intend to feal small, sed Pa. You must reemember always, sed Pa, wen you feal small, sed Pa, that you are going to be small, & wen you feal big, sed Pa, yure mind will X-pand.

Yes, sed Ma, & yure chest will X-pand also.

It is good for the chest to X-pand, sed Pa. It is good for the lungs.

I doant like to think of all them other wurlds, I sed. It maiks me feal kind of lost & fritend, I sed.

I am glad thare is one male in this fambly that is not stuck on hisself, sed Ma.

Meening, I suppose, that I am con-seeted, sed Pa. Oh, well, sed Pa, grate men has always been misunnerstood by thare wifes, sed Pa, it is one of the crosses wich thay must bare, sed Pa.

In Memoriam 3

IN loving memory of our dear daughter, EDITH GRACE MORASH, called home December 20, 1925.

In the graveyard softly sleeping
Where the flowers gently wave
Lies the one we love so dearly
In her silent, lonely grave.
You will never be forgotten,
Never from our memory fade,
Loving hearts will always linger
Around the grave where you are laid.
Sadly missed by family and friends.

IN loving memory of NEHEMIAH BREWER, beloved husband of MARGARET BREWER, St. John, N. B., Canada.

BRITAIN STANDS BY DEBT PACT WITH U. S.

London, Dec. 20 (A.P.)—Great Britain will stand by her debt funding agreement and the principles of the Balfour note, was the comment of an official of the Foreign Office today on the proposal of the Faculty of Political Science of Columbia University, New York, for a conference to revise the war debt settlements.

Dr. Marsh Has Other Ways of Settling War Debts

The proposal advanced by 42 professors of Columbia University that an international conference reconsider the debt situation, was endorsed today by Dr. Daniel L. Marsh, president of Boston University.

Dr. Marsh advocated two other methods to [illegible] first, one being: "Let us tell the rest of the world we will expect them to pay back every cent they have borrowed, unless they will disarm. In other words, let us buy disarmament with those debts.

"My second suggestion is that America should go into the league of nations. If we were in the league of nations we could work upon the solution of these international problems with far more intelligence and effectiveness than we can on the outside.

"Third, failing in the above, then let us by all means have a new international conference for the study of the whole debt situation. To say that any plan of settlement agreed upon is fixed and that we will not deviate from it, is short-sighted policy."

Vets to See Her

IN NEW FILM

Bebe Daniels, in "Stranded In Paris," will be shown disabled veterans at Chelsea Naval Hospital and West Roxbury through arrangements made by the Boston Evening American and the Metropolitan Theatre.

Christmas Week for disabled veterans at Chelsea Naval Hospital and the U. S. Veterans Hospital in West Roxbury dawned with the wounded heroes looking forward eagerly to entertainment which includes Bebe Daniels in her newest comedy, "Stranded in Paris."

Through arrangements by the Boston Evening American and the Metropolitan Theatre, the veterans will see the film without leaving their hospitals.

"Stranded in Paris" will be shown at the Chelsea hospital on Thursday evening, and at West Roxbury on Christmas night. Other entertainment is on the programs at both places.

BAY STATE BOWLING ALLEYS LEAD NATION WITH 2,987

Washington, Dec. 20 (I.N.S.).—They are still training two-gun men out in Missouri and Oklahoma, the home of the James boys and other notorious six-shooter experts, famed in yellow-back literature.

More shooting galleries are in operation in St. Louis, Kansas City and other Missouri cities than in any other State, while Oklahoma ranks a close second, according to Internal Revenue Bureau figures made public today.

Pool and billiard popularity centered in Pittsburgh, where there are in operation 9,090 tables. The entire United States has 185,219 pool and billiard tables.

There were more bowling alleys in Massachusetts than any other State, 2,987 having reported for Federal taxation. The national total was 23,142.

New York City went far ahead in the number of taxicabs and other automobiles for hire, with 20,876 reported for taxation.

HAND $81,00 TO EASTERN CARMEN

Santa Claus came early to men of the Eastern Massachusett Street Railway, when about 1,792 employes received approximately $81,000 today, the amount due them the retroactive pay increase recently awarded by the arbitration board.

The employes who received the checks were the blue uniformed men, shop men at Campello, Chelsea and Lynn, pit men, track men, blacksmiths, armature winders, carpenters, car-cleaners and other workers.

The award was announced in October, but was retroactive to May 2. The main features were an increase in the basic wage from 61 to 62½ cents per hour, with time and a half for work over eight hours and all seven-hour days to be paid on eight-hour basis.

JEWISH WOMEN CELEBRATE

Boston Jewish women today celebrated the thirtieth anniversary of the Boston Section, Council of Jewish Women, with festivities held at the Hotel Somerset and heard their president, Mrs. Milton J. Rosenau review the successful activities of an organization potent in the lives of its 3,000 members.

Presidents, past and honorary, attended, each contributing a word of good cheer and helpful suggestion.

The anniversary also served to honor the election of Mrs. I. K. B. Prager, as recording secretary of the National Council of Jewish Women.

Among the guests were Mrs. Arthur D. Potter, president Massachusetts State Federation of Women's Clubs; Mrs. Frederick Glazier Smith, general federation director for the State; Mrs. Fred L. Pigeon, City Federation head; Mrs. Carl Watson, Mrs. Ely Feibelman, president League of Jewish Women's Organizations; Mrs. Ezekiel Van Noorden; Mrs. Felix Kornfeld; Miss Ruth Alexander, Dr. Maurice Hexter. Council members furnished the entertainment.

SHIP ON FIRE REACHES HUB

After a four-day battle with flames raging below hatches in two of her holds, the Shipping Board vessel West Celina arrived at quarantine today and asked for help.

The fireboat 44 was sent down the harbor and while the vessel's crew stood by expecting the hatches to be blown off, tons of water were poured into the smouldering cargo. The decks had been so hot for the past two days that the sailors could hardly walk on them.

With Captain Frank Stevens the vessel carried 32 officers and men. The fire broke out in hold No. last Thursday. The hatches were battened down and live steam turned into the hold. The flames, however, spread to hold No. 3. Again the hatches were battened down, but it was feared they would be blown off. The cargo in hold No. was cotton and in No. 3 was cotton and tobacco.

NIGHT WORKER WED AND WENT TO WORK

Inez M. Munsie, 20-year-old Malden beauty, today asked a divorce from her husband, Herbert Munsie of New York, in Middlesex Probate Court. She told the court she married Munsie in 1923 at New York, where she had gone for a visit.

"We never lived together as man and wife," she testified. "He was a night worker, and after the ceremony he went to work."

Then, according to her story, she started for Boston the next day. He was supposed to come with her, but failed to appear. She said she promised to marry him only after he promised to come to Malden to live with her parents. After she came here, she said, she went back to New York and asked her husband to come to this city. He refused, she said. The last time she saw him was three years ago. The hearing was continued.

FAVORS KEEPING BIG OTIS CO. MILL IN WARE

Hope of keeping the mills of the Otis Company in New England soared today when a special investigating committee made a report to the stockholders recommending retention of present locations.

Investigation was made by the committee as a result of the vote of the directors to move the company's mill in the town of Ware to the South.

It is considered likely the stockholders at their next meeting will accept the committee's report and refuse to move southward.

One Present That Lasts Forever

And There Is No Other, Not Even Imperishable Gold or Diamonds

Christmas is coming, what should you give?

First of all, something useless, or at least something that represents pure luxury, to prove that it is really a Christmas present.

Don't be like the old farmer, Homer Davenport's neighbor, who, with his four sons, got up a little Christmas fund of $1.75, and bought mother a new axe to chop firewood.

After you have given your more or less useless present, think of something that will last forever, grow more valuable every year, while other presents grow less valuable.

There is a present that will enable the one who receives it to buy presents for himself, through all the years, with the income from the original present.

Give a well chosen piece of real estate.

Real estate is part of the earth. It remains as long as the earth lasts and the records stand.

The hard diamond, the ornament of solid gold, may last through generations, or a thief may carry them away, fire may destroy them tomorrow.

The thief cannot carry away a corner lot, or the building on it, and a good insurance policy defies fire.

Some day, you may say, even this earth will pass, and the finest corner lot will be worth nothing. Yes, but that will be millions of years hence and it need not worry you.

While you live, and your great, great, great grandchildren live, a good piece of land will be a permanent possession, always there, always increasing in value.

Greater population means greater land values. Ask the earnest Single-Taxer about that; he knows.

If you buy in the city, increasing crowds that throng the streets increase your land's value.

If you buy in the suburbs, or farther out, every invention, every improvement, that facilitates traffic adds to the value of your land.

And wherever you buy, every baby born means that your land is worth more.

Buying land changed the Astor family, the Goelets and others of New York from people of modest means to families worth tens of millions, giving an excellent imitation of the lily that toils not.

It was more babies and nothing else that built up their real estate fortunes.

You can make a good real estate present for a million dollars, or for one or two hundred dollars or less.

If you have good judgment but lack large capital, you can choose a piece of land wisely, make the first payment, and give it to someone able, perhaps with your help, to continue the payments.

Such a gift would stimulate ambition, develop thrift, the habit of saving in the receiver.

You cannot confer a greater boon on any young man or woman than to teach thrift.

Franklin advised giving a young man a razor, thus teaching him to save money and time by shaving himself instead of going to the barber.

A well chosen present of real estate, partly paid for, will teach saving on a bigger, more interesting scale than any razor could teach it.

If paid for outright, and bought in a neighborhood of increasing values, such a real estate present does more than "save time." It carries with it eventually independence, the right to do as you please with your time. It means freedom.

Other values rise, fall, shift, vanish.

Stocks and businesses go to pieces, fashions change, the man who made corsets in 1910 must manufacture canary bird cages with his wire or go out of business in 1926.

Fashion in land doesn't change. Population increases steadily, land values with it.

In every city, its suburbs, and beyond, real estate offers opportunity and points the way to independence.

Buy real estate, take care of it, and it will take care of you.

Give real estate, all paid for, and you give promise of future independence.

Give real estate partly paid for, and you develop thrift and ambition.

For a good Christmas gift, try real estate.

Santa Claus Loves Them All

There Is NOT ONE Little Child in All Boston He Will Not Call Upon IF HE GETS HALF A CHANCE

Friends of Santa Claus who wish to put a stop to the slanderous story which has been going the rounds for the past few days, to the effect that the dear old gentleman has taken to the high hat and has crossed the names of the VERY POOR off his visiting list, are advised to get in touch with the Boston Evening American's "Mr. Goodfellow" without delay.

"Mr. Goodfellow," with the proper amount of support from all who truly believe, will endeavor to set at rest next Friday night, once and for all time, the wicked report that Santa Claus "plays favorites."

This is Goodfellows' opportunity week, now the time for all grown-up Santa Claus fellows to rally round.

Call Liberty 4000. Ask for the Boston Evening American's "Mr. Goodfellow." Let HIM give you the name and address of some needy family not too remote from your own part of Greater Boston. Furnished with all needful information, you can call upon the afflicted ones in person, thus PROVING the existence of our good old friend and demonstrating beyond question that he is EVERYBODY'S Santa Claus.

While you may want to help in this good work, of seeing that Santa Claus comes to ALL, it may be impossible for you to accompany your gift with the personal touch. You MAY prefer not to be known in the matter. In that event, the Boston Evening American will be pleased to act as YOUR agent.

In either case, BE a Goodfellow! Remember the telephone number, Liberty 4000.

ON THINKING AND RELIGION

By DR. FRANK CRANE

THE Right Reverend Arthur Foley Winnington-Ingram, Lord Bishop of London, recently said in a sermon at St. John's Cathedral that Christianity demands thinking.

This seems to controvert a commonly believed notion that we only believe a thing because it is impossible.

The ordinary conception of prayer, for instance, is that of the Scotchman who prayed, "Lord, please have two and two make five."

It all depends on what you think religion is.

If it is a mere means of getting safely into heaven perhaps the best plan is to leave the whole matter in the hands of the church. Turn your thinking over to it and it will attend to the matter for you. It is your business only to believe and the church will take care of the consequences.

If, however, your opinion of religion is that it is one of the means of making the world a better place to live in, that opinion certainly requires all the intelligence you have. It takes brains to think of better economic conditions, and brains to erect the social structure in such a way as to give the unfortunate man a chance.

Altogether the modern conception of religion is that it takes a good deal of mentality to be a first-class Christian. It is really a struggle between medievalism and modernism.

It is unfortunate that the term "free thinking" was ever made the antithesis of religion. A good test of whether your particular brand of religion is wholesome or not is how it affects your thinking. If it stimulates it and encourages it, if it gives your thinking poise and stability and is helpful to you in forming intelligent opinions, it is a good religion. But if it stands at every crossway and raises a forbidding hand, saying you shall not go here or there, if its main effect is to limit and to stop your thinking, it is hardly to be desired.

What Do You Know?

If you don't know the answers to any of the questions, make note of those particular numbers and learn the correct results by consulting tomorrow's paper.

Do these words mean the same or are they nearly opposite in meaning?

1.	Right.	Injustice.
2.	Tidy.	Orderly.
3.	Polite.	Courteous.
4.	Compassionate.	Vindictive.
5.	Hostile.	Inimical.
6.	Unusual.	Normal.

Fill in each blank:

7. "She walks in ——— light the night of cloudless climes and starry skies."—Byron.
8. "Was this the face that launched a thousand ships
And burnt the ——— towers of Ilium."—Marlowe.

In each line what is the one word that doesn't belong?

9. Catholic—Episcopalian—Democrat—Methodist—Baptist.
10. Chest—head—liver—shoes—neck.
11. Sparrow—canary—mouse—oriole—hawk.
12. Weary—fatigued—tired—exhausted—refreshed.
13. McKinley—Lincoln—Roosevelt—Emerson—Wilson.
14. Ireland—France—Sardinia—Australia—Porto Rico.

See tomorrow's paper to verify your answers.

Answers to Saturday's test:

Odds and Ends of the Town

GOOD NEWS

OFFICERS and men of the 26TH DIVISION are tickled pink at the news that their beloved Chief of Staff, COLONEL JOHN W. HYATT, is not to be transferred to the Southwest. Original orders to that effect have been revoked. COLONEL HYATT, wartime aide to GENERAL EDWARDS, has been a big factor in placing the Massachusetts Division at the top of the list in efficiency. No one is more pleased to have him remain than his commander, MAJOR-GENERAL EDWARD L. LOGAN.

NO SPEED

Another thorn in the side of overworked traffic officers during the Christmas rush is the inconsiderate woman who orders "JAMES" to stop the car in the middle of traffic while she takes plenty of time to alight for a shopping tour. The other day a woman held up traffic on TREMONT STREET for fully three minutes, causing a jam that stretched back for over 100 yards. She was in no hurry even when a truck-driver yelled: "Come on, old girl, get a move on."

LISTENS

MAYOR JOHN E. WALSH of REVERE, and his first cousin, SENATOR DAVID I. WALSH, resemble each other. MAYOR WALSH says he doesn't expect to go as high as "DAVE" politically, but is willing to wager a few cigars he can top him as a "good listener to the wiles and guiles of men with axes to grind."

WHAT THEY ALL SAY

EX-CITY TREASURER JOHN J. CURLEY says he will insist if elected MAYOR of BOSTON, that Hampden street, ROXBURY, main artery of travel in town from the MOUNT PLEASANT and GROVE HALL sections, be kept clear of snow and ruts after Winter storms. EX-FIRE COMMISSIONER "TEDDY" GLYNN, erstwhile candidate for Mayor, says he will do likewise. EX-MAYOR JOHN F. FITZGERALD always did it. MAYOR NICHOLS promised the MOUNT PLEASANT IMPROVEMENT ASSOCIATION he would attend to the matter.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

"I'M a weakling," says Mildred. "It must be so wonderful to be strong, like Alice Blair. Alice has always been so strong. She's had the most terrible things to face. Look at the time her husband deserted her—the way she pitched in and took care of herself and her three children. And the time little Eddie was so sick with infantile paralysis—she was just wonderful! But, of course everyone knew she would be. Strong people like Alice can always be depended upon in emergencies. Why, everyone who knows her, leans on Alice. Oh, I wish I was like that. Instead of being so weak."

Mildred does not admit her weakness with shame. Nor even with regret. She feels that Fate has made her weak, just as it has made her a blonde with a turned up nose. She certainly wouldn't feel responsible for the shape of her nose. Then why should she be responsible for the weakness? Of course, it's too bad that she's weak, but she was made that way and she can't do anything about it.

She's different. That's all there's to it. Things affect her differently than they do people like Alice.

She's more easily frightened and bewildered and depressed and hurt. Why, she just wants to break out crying over the least little thing. And she gets simply terrified if there's any danger.

No Self-Confidence.

Besides that she hasn't any self-confidence. That's the worst part of being weak. You haven't any self confidence. It must be wonderful to be sure of yourself. Of course, people who are sure of themselves aren't afraid to tackle anything. They don't know that awful feeling of emptiness and wobbliness.

So it's terribly unjust to expect weak people to do things strong people can do.

That's what Mildred thinks about herself, and says whenever she has to meet a difficult situation. She is perfectly sincere. She honestly believes that she is different from "strong" people—that she experiences tremors and confusions which they do not feel. She also wants to feel that way, for it provides a perfect alibi for failure or cowardice. She wants it to be true.

But it isn't true.

Mildred isn't "different." Weak people don't differ from strong people as she thinks they do. There are stolid people who are not sensitive to emotional pressure, but really strong people are not stolid people. Strong people are just as much afraid inside, as bewildered, depressed and hurt. They, also, have their feelings of "emptiness and wobbliness" when facing new and difficult demands upon their strength. But they tackle the job just the same.

Pride Drives Them On.

Their pride makes them tackle it. Therein lies the only difference between the Weak Person and the Strong Person. The strong person has no greater amount of courage, or patience or ability. It isn't any easier for him to endure. He suffers and grieves just as acutely as his weaker brother. But he has built a pride in himself which won't let him surrender.

IF ONLY I WERE STRONG, LIKE SOME FOLKS, WHAT WONDERFUL THINGS I'D DO!
A FAVORITE ALIBI
12-18

If Mildred would acknowledge this fact she'd get out of the "weak" class very soon. There's something comforting in the thought that Fate weighed the dice against you and relieved you of all the responsibility for your lack of spine. There's even a sort of pride in being singled out for such inferiority. It puts a premium on timidity and sensitiveness as though they were rare gifts instead of handicaps. There are no prouder people in the world than the self-confessed weaklings. Yes, the Fate alibi is most comforting. But there's nothing comforting or complimentary in being told that you're not different after all—that you're simply lacking in decent pride.

It would be a very different world if weaklings had to face the truth about themselves.

THE RHYMING OPTIMIST

By Aline Michaelis

OH, who can say of beauty just what it is or why some glimpse of transient loveliness can soothe and satisfy? Who knows why sunset's glory just drifting into night can ease the ache the day has brought and lend the soul delight? Who knows why sweet notes soaring in swiftly-ceasing song can leave tender memory to linger all life-long? Not I, who follow beauty and worship from afar her tints in every violet, her touch in ever star! Not I, who find her glamour in joy of youth and lass, and watch her fading wonder across old faces pass. We can but say of beauty her everchanging glow shines not the same for any two, yet fills some lack all know.

Life Flies to Planets?

By Garrett P. Serviss

Noted Astronomer and Writer on Scientific Topics of Popular Interest.

SOME years ago Svante Arrhenius, the Swedish chemist invented the hypothesis that life germs may be conveyed through open space from planet to planet and even from the worlds of one solar system to those of another by means of the "pressure of light" which is capable of driving off exceedingly minute particles, say the hundred thousandth of an inch in diameter, with a force exceeding that of gravitation.

This theory, called "panspermism," makes a wonderful appeal to the imagination. To mention only one possibility that it suggests, suppose the scourging diseases which from time to time have suddenly descended upon the human race, sweeping irresistibly from continent to continent, to be new arrivals from some other planet say Mars or Venus, what kind of quarantine could we establish against that sort of undesirable and uninvited immigration? Might not even new species of living human beings be brought to the earth in that manner?

But the objection has been urged against Arrhenius's theory that living germs could not possibly survive a long subjection to the intense cold of open space and to the supposed state of absolute void existing there.

Paul Becquerel has submitted this objection to an experimental test. Taking dry seeds of luzern, mustard, wheat, etc., together with dry spores of various cryptogams and bacteria, he sealed them up in tubes made as nearly absolutely vacuous as possible, and kept them plunged in liquid air during three weeks and in liquid hydrogen during seventy seven hours.

They then remained for nearly two years in the vacuum, but after being taken out the grains, spores and bacteria reproduced their kind in a normal manner.

Becquerel's conclusion is that "the combined action of an extreme desiccation, a very high vacuum, and very low temperatures arrest every manifestation of life in the germs without causing death."

This result, of course, was strongly favorable to Arrhenius's theory and seemed to warrant the assumption that living germs can remain for long periods of time in interplanetary and interstellar spaces in a state of arrested or retarded vitality and then develop and become the points of departure for multiple organisms upon encountering a world possessing the conditions proper for supporting life.

When germs, spores and bacteria were sealed up in exhausted tubes as in the former experiment and then subjected to the action of ultra violet light even the most resistant spores were destroyed after six hours' exposure to the rays.
